

Willkie's Elwood Talk At 3 O'clock Saturday

Elwood, Ind.—(P)—Details of the program incident to Wendell L. Willkie's acceptance of the Republican presidential nomination here Saturday were announced today.

The climax of the program will come at 3 p. m. (central standard time) when Willkie will be notified formally of his nomination by Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, national chairman, and will deliver his address of acceptance.

The day's festivities will begin at 10 a. m. with a four-hour entertainment in Callaway park, site of the notification.

The nominee and his party will arrive at noon by special train from Rushville, Ind. He is due to reach Rushville Thursday night and remain there until Saturday morning. He and Mrs. Willkie will visit her mother, Mrs. Cora Wilk, and he probably will look over his five farms in Rush county.

An hour after Willkie's arrival in Elwood he will be greeted by members of the Summit American Legion post No. 19 of Akron, O., of which he once was commander.

Then his entourage will motor to the high school for a brief program. Mayor George M. Bonham will welcome him.

Experts Study Butter Grades

Wisconsin, Minnesota Representatives Seek Uniformity in Product

Madison —(P)—Groundwork for establishing uniform grades of butter in the middlewest had been laid today following a conference of Wisconsin and Minnesota officials.

Representatives of these two large producing states met here yesterday for a mutual discussion of the proposal. Iowa also had been invited to participate but was unable to send representatives.

Ralph E. Ammon, director of the Wisconsin department of agriculture, told the conference farmers would find increased income through higher quality butter and anything to accomplish that objective would be worth trying.

Minnesota executives agreed to submit the program before the butter industry of that state to determine the wishes of the producers.

Besides Ammon, Wisconsin was represented by W. L. Witte, marketing chief and L. G. Kuennen, dairy division chief of the department of agriculture; Prof. L. C. Thomsen, of the university college of agriculture; William F. Groves, Lodi; E. R. Eckwirth, Spooner; and Perry McHenry, Virgoqua, members of the state advisory butter committee.

Deputy Commissioner E. J. Thye and Henry J. Hoffman, chief chemist of the Minnesota department of agriculture, also attended.

Expect Norris to Attend Reunion

Wapaca — Senator George W. Norris has not forgotten that the fifty-eighth annual reunion of the L.U.N. should be observed this month at the Chain of Lakes, and reports come from Washington that he will be here within the next two weeks. Only two members survive of the nine who, when they were graduated from the University of Valparaiso in 1883, pledged that "as long as life should last, we'll meet in annual banquet to celebrate the past." They are Senator Norris of Nebraska and E. E. Smith of Dodge City, Kans., who have been neighbors at the Chain of Lakes for more than 30 years.

For several years the gatherings were held in Valparaiso. In recent years they were held at Grand View hotel, Chain of Lakes, and for the last three years at the homes on Rainbow lake.

At one time Senator Norris traveled from the Pacific coast to Delevan, Wis., to be present. The significance of the letters L.U.N. have never been disclosed.

Phil Cronin Doesn't Live There Any More

When Phil Cronin, 52, who was fined in municipal court for drunken driving yesterday, was arrested by city police early Monday, he gave his address as 739 W. Spencer street. Whether he knew it or not, he no longer was living at that address.

Mrs. Ida Dolven, who lives at that address said yesterday that Cronin "moved" from the home at 8 o'clock the night before he was arrested.

Steer Munches Mouthful of Bills; Farmer Tears His Hair

Butler, Pa. —(P)—"I was feeding my cattle," lamented farmer Max Luther, "when a steer grabbed a handkerchief out of my hip pocket and went munching away."

"It wouldn't have been so bad but there was $150 in bills rolled up in that handkerchief."

He reached into the steer's mouth and retrieved two twenties and a ten, but the remainder escaped his clutches.

Phoenix, Ariz. — John Hays slowed down his car to let a herd of cattle cross the road. The last cow was in too great a hurry to join the leaders.

She attempted to hurdle the car but landed on the hood—face to face with the startled driver.

Grand Island, Neb. — A stray dog chose the municipal bathhouse for a maternity ward. It wasn't exactly suitable so police were called.

When Officer Chet Moore arrived he found three new puppies nuzzling their mother.

When Moore took them to the police station there were four.

By the time he deployed to the dog pound the count was five.

And when city poundmaster Walt

ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT VISITS CANDIDATE WILLKIE—Driving from his Texas home to Wyoming fishing camp, Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, stopped at Colorado Springs, Colo., where Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential candidate, is vacationing. When Willkie heard that young Roosevelt was in his hotel, he invited him to his quarters, despite obvious disapproval from former President Hoover who was also visiting Willkie. Roosevelt is at left.

War Situation Today "Zero Hour at Hand," London Warns as Air Battle Rages

Attacking in waves of 50 to 100, Germany's ace fighting and bombing pilots stepped up the tempo of the three-day-old aerial blitzkrieg against Britain today in tempestuous assaults all along a 200-mile front on the English channel.

While British R.A.F. spitfires and hurricane fighters roared up to meet the Nazi sky raiders, the censored London press warned that a German attempt at actual land invasion may be imminent.

From two other points—one beligerent, one neutral—the long-awaited "zero hour" is near.

In Berlin, Louis P. Lochner, associated press chief of bureau there, messaged:

"All signs pointed today to an early zero hour for a Nazi offensive against England with its climax an attempt to land German troops on the British Isles."

In Bern, Switzerland, foreign military attaches agreed that an attempted invasion of England may come within 72 hours.

The Bern dispatch also said reports were current there that 40-mile Nazi "big Berthas" as Calais and Dunkerque already had begun laying down a cross-channel barrage behind Dover. Dover is just 22 miles from Calais, the narrowest point in the English channel.

Simultaneously, the English censor, after holding back a dispatch

Rural Mail Boxes Outstanding Symbol Of Honor System

Washington —(P)—The post office department today nominated the often battered and dusty rural mail box as an outstanding symbol of the honor system in the United States.

More than 6,000,000 of the little boxes are scattered across the nation from Evening Shade, Ark., to Rough and Ready, Tex.; from Young America, Ind., to Social Circle, Ga., and back again to Bad Axe, Mich.

Unguarded in every instance, only 10 of them were reported robbed in the last 12 months, and 10 is about the annual average.

"People seem to have great respect for this symbol of Uncle Sam," said Joseph E. Cooper, superintendent of the division of rural mails.

Officials have no way of estimating the value of the commerce which passes through the tin boxes, but they say it probably runs into millions annually.

In sections of the country the boxes sometimes are unopened for weeks and yet merchandise and money inside remains untouched.

The department would discuss the suggestion that maybe rural folk are more honest than those in the city.

"You'll just have to draw your own conclusion," said Superintendent Cooper.

Silver Was Scarce

East St. Louis, Ill. —(P)—Leon G. Smith presented his mother, Mrs. Perle Smith of Belleville, with 90 silver dollars for a gift on her 90th birthday, but it wasn't easy. So scarce were the big coins here, they had to be ordered from out of town.

American Red Cross Aiding Bombed Town

Observer Says Arcis Practically Lifeless, Buildings Shattered

Arcis Sur Aube, France (via Berlin) —(P)—Virtually razed by bombing planes in less than an hour during the battle of France, Arcis Aube in the Champagne region of German-occupied France is being given American assistance.

Of all the bomb-blasted towns I have seen in battle-grounds of the new war, Arcis—famed as the birthplace of George Jacques Danton, French revolutionary leader—presented the worst picture.

Out of more than 3,000 inhabitants, only a few hundred remain. Bodies of many still lie in the ruins. Entire blocks of houses have no more than a few walls standing and the 15th century church is a wreck.

Today for the first time since the German military push, American Red Cross trucks rolled into Arcis with food and medical supplies.

The Germans and French are cooperating in the reconstruction.

Those residents who are left cannot even agree on the date of bombardment, although the mayor, a short red-faced farmer, said it was "around June 4."

"Bombed Continuously"

"We were bombed continuously for almost an hour," said the mayor. "When the planes had flown over once, they circled, came back and dropped more bombs, both explosive and incendiary."

"We do not yet know how many people were killed."

Residents wounded in the attack still needed medical attention so the American hospital arranged for doctors and nurses. German army doctors gave first aid when the Nazi

Former 'Miss America' Aids In New Recruiting Campaign

Washington —(P)—The army called a former "Miss America" to the colors today in its drive to enlist an additional 50,000 men as soon as possible.

Recruiting offices gave nationwide publicity to a picture of Miss Marilyn Meske of Marion, Ohio, smiling her approval of the familiar poster of Uncle Sam saying: "I want you!"

Officers said Miss Meske had been crowned "Miss America 1938-39" at Atlantic City.

The recruiting service for the first time in its history, will send truck and trailer units to small towns where the populations are not large enough to justify maintenance of permanent recruiting offices.

The technique of the units will vary with the talents of the officer in command. Generally speaking there will be music to attract a crowd, just like in a medicine show. And then through loud speakers the officer will talk about the service and about America.

The recruiting service is using many different forms of publicity.

To keep the campaign rolling, the army plans to place a contract later this week with a national advertising agency for a five-month advertising program to cost $50,000 a month.

Highways Jammed as Men, Guns Pour Into 'War' Area

Camp McCoy —(P)—Men and guns jammed the highways leading into this make-believe battle area today as officers of the Second army pushed mobilization of national guard troops from seven states.

Headquarters spokesmen said that mobilization of the force of about 60,000 would be completed by nightfall. For the next three weeks the troops will undergo a period of intensive training.

The flow of units began Sunday, but highway traffic reached its peak today as 70 convoys, including 852 vehicles, converged on the maneuver area. Most of the convoys were artillery commands from Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia.

The largest was the 182nd field artillery from Michigan, with 63 vehicles.

Nine railroad trains, unloaded troops at Warren, Wytheville and Camp Williams. These soldiers came from distant points in the Second army area.

Doughboys of the 131st and 132nd infantry, Illinois national guard, marched out to the combat range where riflemen, machine gunners and anti-tank and mortar units were given practice with service ammunition at moving and concealed targets.

Form Combat Teams

Units of the 32nd division, from Wisconsin and Michigan, and the 33rd, from Illinois, which were settled in their camps, were busy organizing combat teams. There also was training in the operations of battalions.

Lieutenant General Stanley H. Ford, Second army commander, planned to address all officers and senior non-commissioned officers this afternoon on the objectives of the training.

Only one minor casualty was reported as 16,000 troops were discharged into the area where more than 60,000 will deploy during the remainder of the month. The casualty, Private Jacob J. Ross of Middletown, Ohio, collapsed from the heat and was taken off a train at Oxford, Wis.

The chatter of machine guns and the sharp bark of rifles could be heard on three combat ranges as some of the rifle companies took up training in combat tactics. Anti tank guns fired at moving targets which zigzagged across rolling round at speeds of from 15 to 20 miles an hour.

Other companies blasted away with trench mortars at concealed targets at the edges of forests of behind the rolling slopes of the valley.

Regulars of the first squadron 14th (horse) cavalry from Fort Sheridan, Ill., rode across country on a reconnaissance mission under the command of Lieutenant Colonel C. B. Hazeltine.

An interested spectator as Ohio troops unloaded at Warren was William E. Gilson, 94, a veteran of Company one, 40th Wisconsin regiment, in the Civil war. The veteran brought a box of strawberries to Lieutenant Colonel Chalmers R. Wilson, signal officer of the 37th division.

Oil Firm Head Resigns Post

Action Is Result of Connection With Nazi Commercial Emissary

New York —(P)—Captain Torkild Rieber, stocky, $100,000-a-year chairman of the Texas corporation, has ended a 35-year career with the international oil firm, the result of recent disclosures of his association with a German commercial emissary to the United States.

The 58-year-old Norwegian-born oil executive, who went to sea at 14 and became a tanker skipper at 21, explained after a seven-hour meeting of the board of directors yesterday that he had submitted his resignation "because of certain publicity detrimental to the Texas corporation" in connection with reports of the activities of Dr. Gerhard Westrick, commercial counselor of the German embassy.

As a result of the revelations concerning Westrick, Rieber acknowledged helping the Nazi representative get a driver's license and offering him the use of a company car.

The oilman explained he considered this "good business" since Westrick, a German supreme court lawyer, had represented the company on occasions in Germany.

The driver's license was revoked by the state motor vehicle department after a hearing which brought testimony from a Texas company official that the company had paid for the car Westrick used but had expected the German official to pay back later. Westrick's license was taken away on grounds his application contained false statements.

Chicago Police Will Assist Elwood Force

Chicago —(P)—The police department arranged today to send 50 uniformed policemen and 10 detectives to Elwood, Ind., next Saturday to assist Indiana officers in handling the crowd at the notification ceremony for Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee.

The reinforcements were requested by Chief M. J. Fogarty of the Elwood force.

Epidemics Break Out In Occupied Regions

Porrentruy, Switzerland —(P)—Epidemics of smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid fever and paratyphoid affecting the maiche plateau area in German-occupied France was disclosed yesterday in special measures taken by Swiss authorities to prevent their spread. The region was the battleground June 15 between German motorized units and tens of thousands of Poles, Spahis, French and other troops trying to escape from the Maginot line zone.

District 4 of the Social Union of First Methodist church is holding a luncheon meeting today at the cottage of Mrs. Olin Mead at Lake Winnebago. On Wednesday Dr. and Mrs. Culver will attend an all-day meeting of the conference board of education at Milwaukee. "Spirit" was the subject of the lesson-sermon for Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist. The following passage was read from "Science and Health the Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "As God Himself is good and is Spirit, goodness and spirituality must be immortal. Their opposites, evil and matter, are mortal error, and error has no creator. If goodness and spirituality are real, evil and materiality are unreal and cannot be the outcome of an infinite God, good."

What's New at the Library

"The American Presidency" by Harold J. Laski a book-of-the-month selection, points out that the president of the United States has a unique role, his powers and functions being subject to peculiar limitations which have root in the Constitution and the historical traditions of a people who came to political life through rebellion against outworn conventions. The author defines those qualities which make for success in the presidency, points to the forces which hedge and delimit the presidential influence, discusses the president's relation with his cabinet, Congress and the supreme court, and the moot question of the third term, and searches out the strength and weakness of the American system, offering his suggestions for reform.

Making a new departure, Sigrid Undset, noted Norwegian author who is now in the United States, sets the scene for her new book, "Madame Dorothea," in eighteenth century Norway instead of the periods which she has hitherto presented. The author, a fugitive from her Norwegian home in Lillehammer whose son was killed defending his country against the Nazi invasion, presents a story woven around a whole gallery of picturesque figures.

For 20 years Henry Beetle Hough, author of "Country Editor," served as editor and publisher of the Vineyard Gazette, founded in 1846 and published continuously ever since. He gives a whole view of the life of Edgar town from town meeting to town drunkard, and the book is full of authentic Americana, character studies, anecdotes and fine appreciations of the pleasures inherent in the printing craft and publishing. The town was an old-time fishing and whaling center which has become one of New England's great summer resorts, and Lewis Gannett has referred to the Vineyard Gazette as "the last weekly newspaper in the country to preserve its own and authentic flavor."

In "The Circling Year" by Fredric F. Van de Water the reader is guided around the full circles of a year in the country by the man who wrote "A Home in the Country." It is the story of two people, their dogs their land and house, and it is full of sharp description and intense observation, touched lightly with quiet humor. The book takes on through each month, giving to each its character.

Canadian vacations are becoming increasingly popular with the decline of foreign travel because of the European war. "See Canada Next" by Larry Nixon plans a vacation in the north, telling where to go, what to see, how long it will take and how much it will cost. It tells motorists how and where to cross the border, describes roads and regulations and tells where the best hunting and fishing is to be found. Data on dude ranches in Canada is included.

A handbook for consumers and producers is "ABC of Cooperatives" by Gerald Richardson. It tells how cooperative actually works, how cooperative marketing, credit unions, cooperative buying clubs and stores are formed and set in operation. It was written by the man who was brought from the Antigonish Movement in Nova Scotia by the Newfoundland government to Newfoundland to introduce cooperation there.

Revealing the basic trends of German business enterprise toward central control, "German Economy 1870-1940" by Gustav Stolper, presents the dramatic and tragic character of Germany's economic and social history from the founding of the Bismarckian Reich to Hitler's gigantic bid for world domination. Three factors which it is claimed have never been brought to the awareness of the western world are listed as follows: The continuity in the underlying trends of German history; the characteristic prevalence of "statism" in German history ever since the days of Prussian ascendancy over the rest of Germany; the apparent failure of any economic interpretation and explanation of recent German developments. The author was formerly head of the research department of the Imperial Austrian General Commissariat for war economy, and later founder and editor of the leading economic weekly, Der Deutsche Volkswirt, and Berlin correspondent of the London Economist. He left Germany in 1933 and became an American citizen.

"The Fight for the Panama Route" by Dwight C. Miner is the story of the North American acquisition of the Panama Canal Zone. In the foreword Allen Nevins says that for decades to come, while the use of the Panama Canal goes on, it will be accompanied by a feeling of moral uneasiness, a sense that the great achievement was clouded by a deplorable and wholly unnecessary blemish. The book points out that the Panama affair was on both sides largely a tragedy of errors.

Interesting Fact About Appleton

The first house to be built in Appleton was little more than a log shack, used as a fur trading post.

It was located on a small piece of land in the Fox river near Alicia park, which served as a landing place for Indians and white explorers. It was on this site that the log cabin was erected in 1835.

It was constructed by Hippolite Grignon, great grandson of Austin DeLangle who was a famous character of French and Indian war days. Ten years after he constructed the crude trading post and home, Grignon, who was otherwise known as "Pollitte" and "Paul," acquired 107.66 acres under a government patent.

Grignon was an agent for the American Fur company. His was the first white family to settle on the Fox river in the Settlement that resulted in the establishment of the village started in the old Second ward in 1848. It is said that the residence of John F. Johnston was the nucleus. He is sometimes referred to as the "first settler of Appleton," although some sources claim that the Rev. W. A. Sampson built the first village president and postmaster. The house he built was in Block 29, now bounded by Johnson, Morrison, Washington, and Durkee streets.

Elks Will Send Large Group to State Conclave

Ritual Team, Winner in Northeastern Area, Will Enter Competition

Appleton lodge's 8-man ritual team representing the northeastern Wisconsin district will compete Thursday night with teams from the two other state districts in ritualistic competition at the thirty-eighth annual convention of the Wisconsin Elks' association Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Green Bay.

The Appleton team, which survived the district elimination contest, is composed of Andrew Parnell, J. M. VanRooy, Glenn H. Arthur, Jack R. Froem, George Mignon, William VanDyck, Sarto Balliet and Raymond P. Dohr. Eleven men also will represent the Appleton lodge at delegates, and a large number of Appleton men is expected to attend. Approximately 500 delegates and 1,500 visitors are expected.

Thursday, other than registration, will be given over to golf on the Oneida course. The first convention session will open with the past presidents' dinner at the Columbus club, which has been taken over by the Elks for the three days. The ritualistic contest followed by cabaret dancing and a floor show in the auditorium will complete the evening program.

Golf and skeet tournaments are scheduled for Friday morning. A "streamlined" barbecue will be held at Bay Beach in the afternoon. Instead of an oxen roasting on a revolving spit, over a bed of coals, there will be 500 pounds of prime beef loaded into fireless cookers in a Chicago packing plant and rushed by fast express to Green Bay where it will be served, steaming hot, from the original cookers. Power and sailboat races will be held offshore.

Ruler's Banquet
The grand exalted ruler's banquet will be held at 5 o'clock Friday with F. E. Thompson, Chicago, past grand exalted ruler as the principal speaker. Elks then will attend the inter-squad game of the Green Bay Packers, the first public appearance of the 1940 squad. Another cabaret dance and floor show in the auditorium will conclude the evening.

Tournament prizes will be awarded at Saturday sessions, and officers will be elected. The impressive memorial service of the order will be held at 11 o'clock. At 2 o'clock the grand parade will begin, in which more than a dozen bands and drum corps, and a large number of marching units will compete for $500 in prizes. Separate prizes totaling $125 will be awarded for decorated bicycles. Entertainment and a third evening cabaret dance will close the convention.

U. S. Defense Is Subject at Lions' Session

Physical Education Work Will be Probed by Boys' Committee

Improving physical education classes in Appleton schools as a help in the national defense program emerged as a Lions club project as that group discussed "Safeguarding America," at its meeting yesterday noon at Conway hotel.

Dewey Zwicker, chairman for the session, opened the discussion by remarking that panic and hysteria did not win wars—organization, teamwork, courage and discipline were necessary.

The German system, which stresses mass physical education of the country's youth, has obviously achieved results. Clarence Turney brought out R. H. Risch, Y. M. C. A. physical education director, said physical education's main fault in the United States is its stressing of competition more than the training of the individual. Periods in our schools become a time for play and not for real physical instruction. Risch added.

A good program in the nation's schools would eliminate much time spent on calisthenics and drill in army life, Alfred W. Wickesberg said, terming these activities largely a waste of time in regard to modern military developments.

The club turned the matter over to its boys' work committee for further consideration.

Work Only Key to Success, Heil Says at Civic Dinner

Kaukauna—"I was fired from one of my first jobs as a store clerk because I spent 95 cents at a county fair. My boss called me a spend-thrift," Governor Julius P. Heil told a crowd of over 400 persons attending the sesquicentennial rally banquet at the high school gymnasium here last night.

Also on the program last night was Professor William F. Raney of Lawrence college who reviewed some of the history of the Fox river valley.

The Flanagan girls string trio, composed of Mary Alice, Margaret Ann, and Joan Flanagan, played several selections and songs were sung by Rita Belongia, Clarence DeBruin, and Gilbert Wallberg. The high school string ensemble entertained during the dinner.

In opening his speech, Governor Heil said "I didn't know that you had such a popular assemblyman that you made him your mayor. He comes to my office every day. You can't keep him out."

Looking over to Senator Mike Mack, who has also at the banquet, the governor chided him when he saw the brace the state senator was wearing because of injury in an auto accident.

"I don't like to see a harness on Mike Mack, but if they don't stay home at night, you have to put a harness on them."

Success Formula

The preliminaries over, Governor Heil advised that the way to get ahead is to work early and work late. The young men should be educated to go to his boss and ask if there is anything more he can do before he goes home. That formula the governor laid down for success.

"There are opportunities for young men now. They should not lay down on the job. They should respect their seniors and the men who employ their father and their brothers and sisters," the governor continued.

"Everybody engaged in industry has to make money if he is going to expand. If industry is prosperous, you and your children will be prosperous."

"People say I am a millionaire," the governor told the group. "Suppose I am. I can only wear one pair of pants at a time. I have to shave once a day just like you. I have nothing more than you—except a lot of worries. Over 10,000 persons are dependent on my factory."

"As long as we have a president, no matter whether or not we like him, as long as we have senators, and state officers, let's pray for them that they may go out courageously to mete out justice in this democracy of ours," the governor concluded.

Professor Talks

Professor Raney in his talk pointed out the different avenues through which Wisconsin received its government and its way of living.

The first avenue in the state's history was the French Canadian influence brought here through the fur traders from 1700 until the end of the fur business in 1845. Had this system continued today, our state would be under the manorial system of big estates and the people renting their farms, he said.

The second avenue was the great influx of the English speaking people who came here from New England and New York to farm. This was from 1840 to 1880. Our system of government is a New York adaptation of the New England idea. These people created modern Wisconsin.

The third avenue, according to Professor Raney was the industrial age beginning about 1875, with the flour mills at first and later the railroads and the paper industry.

Supervisors to Meet

Waupaca—The Waupaca county board will meet at an adjourned session Wednesday, according to L. J. Steiger, county clerk. Relief bills will be considered.

Gantter Vetoes Garbage Plan; Wage Increase

Mayor Claims City's Financial Condition Doesn't Warrant Outlay

Kaukauna — The prospects of a municipal garbage collection system received a setback yesterday as Mayor William J. Gantter vetoed the motion passed by the common council at the August 6 meeting to purchase a truck for garbage collection.

The mayor also vetoed the wage cut restoration granted to the policemen and firemen at the same council meeting. The policemen and firemen received a 10 per cent cut in 1932, of which 5 per cent was restored in 1937 and the remaining 5 per cent at the last council meeting. This final restoration has been vetoed by the mayor.

In his letter to the city clerk Mayor Gantter said that his reason for these vetoes was that the financial condition of the city did not warrant the expenditures. The salaries had been set for this year, in accordance with the ordinance on salaries, in February this year, he said.

"Restoring the salaries will increase the amount of pensions paid out of the pension fund and will soon deplete that fund, and in my opinion," the mayor wrote, "when this fund is depleted, and according to the ordinance, a levy of 1 per cent is placed on all taxable property which will mean an increase in taxes."

Sees Relief Increase

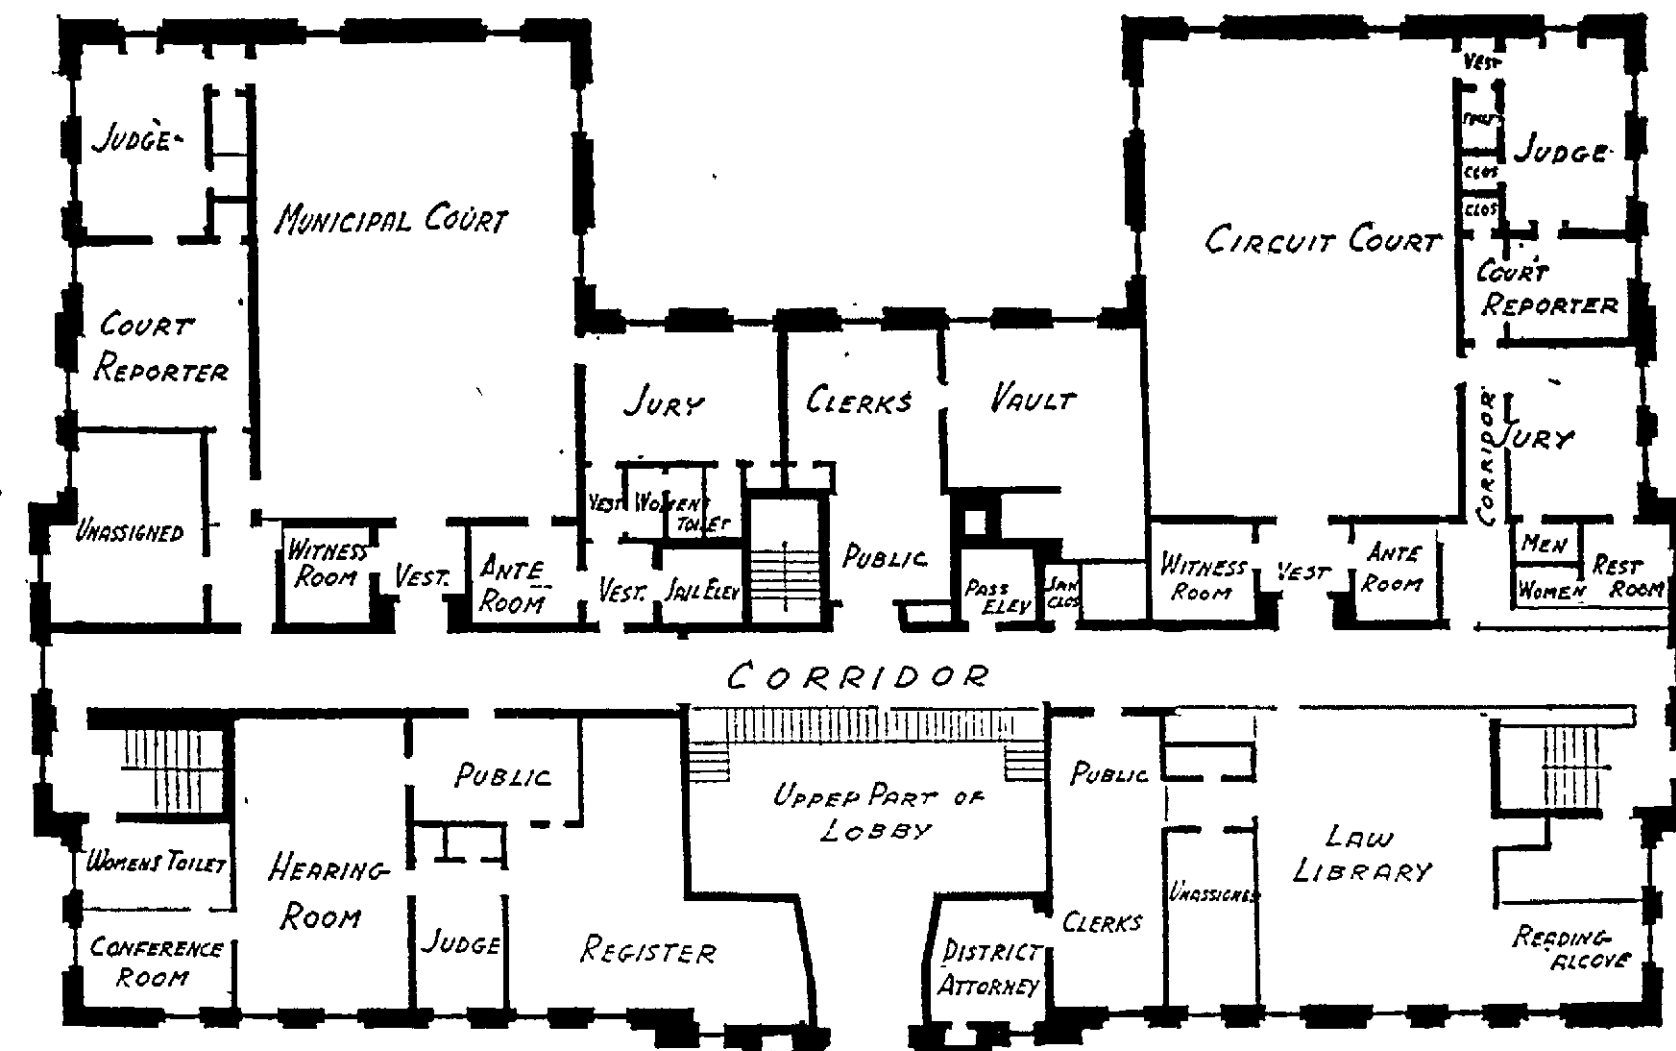

As for the garbage collection, Mayor Gantter in his veto letter stated that there was no price given as to the cost of garbage collection and added that relief costs will go up because it costs the city more money during the winter months and because there would be more on relief when the power project is completed, which he thought would mean an increase in taxes.

In a statement accompanying these veto letters, Mayor Gantter said that the problem is now in the hands of the taxpayers of Kaukauna and they should talk to their aldermen to sustain his vetoes or look for an increase in taxes in case the aldermen override the vetoes with the necessary two-thirds vote.

"The financial condition of the city is very poor," the mayor declared, "and we can collect the garbage in the future as we have in the past. In this case of garbage collection, I believe, that the poorer taxpayers should be given some consideration, due to the fact that many of them are in the low wage class, and we must not put a greater burden on their backs."

"I am in favor of a garbage collection service, but not at this time. For those who want that service, arrangements will be made and a small monthly fee charged."

"As for the restoration of the salaries in the police and fire departments," the mayor continued, "the financial condition of the city, as stated before, will not stand it. No provision has been made in the 1940 budget for such an unforeseen expenditure. I would favor the restoration of pay if the city finances would warrant it. This problem should come before the council when it discusses the 1941 budget."

SECOND FLOOR OF COURTHOUSE—The second floor of the county's new $525,000 courthouse will be given over to judicial functions. The municipal and circuit courtrooms will be on this floor with quarters for the judges, reporters, clerk of courts and district attorney. The sketch is taken from plans drawn by Raymond LeVee, architect.

Ruins of Old Signal Fort Are Discovered at Kaukauna

Kaukauna—Ruins of an old signal fort used at the time of the Blackhawk war in 1832 have been discovered in Kaukauna. The fort lay 75 feet to the rear of the old Dominique Ducharme-Augustin Grignon home.

The fort was built into the side of the hill to furnish protection and remain hidden from the Sauk Indians which were on the warpath then in the southwestern part of the state.

The purpose of the fort, and a chain of similar forts was to signal Fort Howard at Green Bay of the approach of the Sauks so that the settlers at Green Bay could go to the fort there for protection. The signalling would be done by the shooting of a cannon.

The signal fort here was small, having an inside measurement of 18 by 20 feet. The excavations are being carried on by the NYA under the direction of William F. Wolf, custodian of the Grignon home.

During the Blackhawk war, the soldiers were dying from the cholera epidemic, with General Winfield Scott losing 500 men, almost 40 per cent of his company, while enroute from Green Bay to Prairie du Chien.

A request was made to have the Menominee Indians help the American soldiers in subduing the Sauk Indians, and 300 of the Menominees were brought here under the leadership of Augustin Grignon who was made a captain in the army. The Indians were trained near the side of the Grignon home.

Grogan Wins Match in Championship Flight

Kaukauna—Only one match has been played so far in the third round of the championship flight of the city golf tournament sponsored by the Lions club, and four matches have been played in the consolation division.

John Grogan scored an upset when he eliminated Francis McMahon in the championship round, 2 and 1.

In the consolation round Ray Morgan beat Walter Roloff, 6 and 5; Leroy Seifert defeated Leo Driesen, 4 and 2; Walter Kilgas displaced Carl Hansen, 1 up; and Herbert Haas won over Ed Mantel, 4 and 2.

The remaining matches must be played by Saturday, August 17, the committee in charge of the tournament announced.

Oshkosh Man Fined $5 For Reckless Driving

Kaukauna — H. A. Moewa, Oshkosh, was fined $5 and costs with an alternative of 20 days in jail when he pleaded guilty of reckless driving yesterday before Justice of the Peace Abe Goldin. He elected to pay the fine.

Moewa was arrested by the Kaukauna city police Friday night when he passed on the right at an intersection.

The Case of Wenzel Kabat

It is now 34 years since Wenzel Kabat was sentenced to prison for life for the murder of a Kaukauna farmer.

His attempt to now gain a pardon illustrates the difficulty in respect to the administration of justice depending for its stability upon public recollection of crime.

For Kabat murdered in one of those wilful, wanton, deliberate fashions that reveal a man without pity, hard, harsh, and terrible. He murdered for money. He forged deeds of land and bills of sale of stock and personal property. His work was crude and lumpy. That was because he was inexperienced in business and could not foresee either the questions that would be shot at him nor the natural suspicion that would flame up like an oil fire at the condition he created.

Kabat escaped Waupun after serving about eight years and was successful in hiding himself for quite a spell.

The question now presented upon proceedings for pardon is shall he be forgiven? The answer must be divided into two parts—first, is the public safe with such a man loose, and second, how far is the law weakened or cast into disrepute when the perpetrator of an atrocious murder can find freedom and forgiveness this side the Dark River?

Attempting to answer the first question is guesswork. The answer to the second is easier. Certainly the administration of the law is not assisted by turning free one who has created so bloody a record.

Mr. Kabat has never been mistreated. The people have fed him well. The farmers and workers of Wisconsin, together with the other people who reside here, have also clothed him warmly, provided him with medical and dental care, warmed his abode, and protected him from miscreants who might themselves like to see human blood flow.

Mercy is a wonderful human attribute. But the public should be more interested in extending it to those who work and live in fairness than merely to flash a show-off speck of it to one whose freedom may mean a repeat order of Michael McCarthy's murder when the century was young.

The Enchantment of Distance

Some Soviet sympathizers in America were dismayed last fall at the unity of the Finns in preferring to "die on their feet rather than live on their knees" as a Finnish labor organizer put it. The credulous Americans expected the Finns to welcome the Russians as long lost brothers and submit to Moscow as one might to Utopia.

Yet in fact the Finns died valiantly rather than even listen to the love song over the Red radio hookup. There is something very significant about their utter detestation of every Russian.

Our soft-headed American sympathizers with Moscow simply were unacquainted with the last two decades of Finnish history. They did not realize that there have been plenty of Finns in Russia and that the Soviets have treated them far worse than they were treated under the Romanoff autocracy.

Thus there were several hundred thousand Finns who lived in Karelia and Ingria who became a part of the Soviet under the title of Karelian Republic. These Finns were guaranteed autonomy, protection in their persons, customs and religions. But the written promise they found was just as worthless as other Moscow promises.

The sad history of the effort of these peoples to remain civilized and prevent animalization may be found in the accounts written by American newspaper correspondents and permitted by the Moscow censors when they were not quite as strict as they are now. The real persecution of these Finns began in 1931 when the Russian despots stigmatized them as "unassimilable elements." With this designation the order went forth to close all the Lutheran churches, to suppress the Finnish language and even to scatter the people throughout some of the most harsh and barren lands of the extensive Russian empire.

For instance, according to these well authenticated accounts, 4,000 Finnish farmers in 1936 were sent to Siberia and divided up into wood-cutting brigades. This was followed by taking 7,000 on Easter Day, 1937 and scattering them so as to separate and divide them among other classes of the Russian nationality. It was on this occasion that Gylling, the Finnish chief in Karelia, disappeared, never to be seen again.

The Finns in Finland knew the value of Russian promises and the extent of Russian cruelties. Faced with a choice, death seemed to most of them preferable.

Doc Cook and the Great Swindle

Only a little over 30 years ago intrepid souls upon this globe were fired by the ambition to get to the North Pole. It wasn't anticipated that they would find anything of particular value there. But the Pole was a challenge and the spirit of man felt ashamed in permitting the gauntlet to lie there upon the ground.

In 1909 Dr. Frederick A. Cook flashed out to the world that he was returning from discovery of the Pole and would shortly land in Denmark. His trip was a trick and the Doctor was a fraud. Philip Gibbs, a newspaper man who rushed to meet him, smelled the fraud, turned back the covers upon the story and saw it, announced it to the world and was shunned and kicked for his pains.

When Gibbs grabbed Cook's hand at the boat at Elsinore he hadn't the slightest doubt that Cook had been at the Pole but when he discovered that the Arctic explorer had no diary, no journal and no astronomical observations he became skeptical. Little things thereafter convinced him that the claim of Cook was a sham. As Gibbs himself described it he noticed that when the reception committee boarded the ship Cook came out of his cabin with a livid look; "I never saw guilt and fear more clearly written on any human face," but the reception committee was so overpowered by its own enthusiasm that it noticed nothing and when Gibbs' exposure reached the world his own journalistic chums criticized him even as Danish royalty was entertaining Cook and Copenhagen University was conferring its honorary degree upon him, which it was later to recall.

Some colossal frauds have walked across the sands of time casting great shadows and inducing thunderous applause. Sometimes they have not been found out until too late. Cook was found out early. His conviction years later for fraud in the high pressure sale of wildcat oil stocks was just another outcropping of his innate disposition to pan something off for what it was not in order to gain fame and fortune.

Cook was found out because he was a slouchy planner else he would have foreseen an investigation into his North Pole claim. When a fellow departs into the blinding blizzards of the wilderness and returns with a claim but nothing else he must lie awake many nights after his exposure thinking of the things he might have done to deceive the university savants when they questioned him.

The President as of August First

The first of Dr. Gallup's nation wide poll shows Mr. Willkie elected.

But the slip between the dock and the ship has been found wider than the English Channel in our presidential campaigns.

The most remarkable thing about that straw vote to our way of thinking is the revelation of so many millions as independents.

Very likely, as Dr. Gallup declares, the independent vote in November is going to determine who will be president.

This should be good news for Mr. Willkie. For the independent voter is the thinker. He is more likely to be the intelligent man. And as he turns over in his mind certain factors in our public life of 1940 he will swing stronger and with more determination than ever into the Willkie column.

The Third Term will not make much of an appeal to the independent thinker. For the Third Term is a scoffer and a sneerer at all our past greatness.

The more men think, and the more carefully they think upon the necessity of any president serving longer than any one of our noble pioneers and builders through 150 years of unparalleled achievement, and the more they reflect upon the secret and stealthy manner of painting Mr. Roosevelt as an unwilling candidate finally succumbing through patriotism alone, the more certainly they will appraise the whole show as the most disgraceful hippodrome ever presented to the nation.

And when the American people get the correct whiff of this shady business the election will turn into a rout.

LONESOME

Across the lake I hear the lonesome crying
Of a late moon. The moon is lost to view.
Over the sleeping trees a mist is lying.
And I am lonely too.

It echoes in my heart, that mournful calling.
I do not hear it when the house is filled
With joyful laughter; but the dusk is falling.
And now the world is stilled.

I am alone in summer, and the mellow
Warm winds are sighing dreamily of you,
I hear the lost loon cry, that sorry fellow,
And I am lonely too!

The DAILY WASHINGTON
MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—Although first behind-the-scenes opposition to conscription came largely from nazi, anti-British, communist sources, there is no question that those opposing the bill now have rolled up some very genuine and sincere opinion from all walks of life, particularly the churches.

In fact opposition to conscription seems to be one thing upon which churches of almost every denomination agree, and this is probably the first time that both Catholic and Methodist have worked together on a vital legislative issue.

Catholic opposition to conscription has been expressed by Monsignor Michael J. Ready, who is circulating a statement from the Catholic bishops; and from Father Barry O'Toole, who expressed the opposition of the National Catholic Welfare Council. Archbishop John T. McNicholas of Cincinnati also has circulated a pastoral letter urging opposition to the bill.

Protestant opposition has come from Charles Boss, whose organization is supposed to represent 8,000,000 Methodists; Bishop William A. Lawrence, speaking for a group inside the Episcopal Church; and also from the Federal Council of Churches, the overall Protestant body.

Outside the church groups the Farmers' Union in several states has registered opposition, also the railroad brotherhoods. Also, this opposition to conscription is about the only thing John L. Lewis and Bill Green have agreed upon for months.

Note—However, it is an inescapable fact that these very well-meaning and sincere groups are being used, at least in part, by a militant back-stage group of pro-Nazi, Bundite isolationists to serve their own interests.

WILLKIE'S TECHNIQUE
Few of the newsmen covering Wendell Willkie have seen anyone given so quick and complete a brush-off as George Peck, onetime AAA administrator, who broke with Henry Wallace and Cordell Hull over the farm program and eventually was edged out of the New Deal.

Peck brought to Colorado Springs a prepared statement which he read to the press. But Mr. Willkie stood behind him, and at one point in his rendition, Willkie turned to the newsmen and said:

"What are you boys doing tonight?"
Peck dashed like mad through the remainder of his statement, then walked out as unhappily as he left during the early days of the Roosevelt administration.

John Hamilton and Joe Martin got almost the same treatment when they arrived in Colorado Springs. Martin attended a press conference and answered questions in the same manner he has for years as majority Republican leader in congress. But Willkie would interrupt by interpreting what Martin meant to say.

"I don't mean to interrupt you, Joe," the candidate would put in, "but this is the way I interpret what you mean."

MINTON VS. HOLT
After Senators Minton and Holt had verbally exchanged foul blows in the senate debate on conscription, a transcript of their remarks was sent to each of them by the official reporters, before printing in the Congressional Record.

This gave the speakers chance to moderate their strong language, if they desired. Both men returned the copy sheets unaltered. And since the official reporters take no liberties with personal remarks tossed about in the senate, they were printed as spoken.

Commented the official reporters: "We make no changes in foul language in the senate so long as it's grammatical."

COVERING WILLKIE
Press conferences at Colorado Springs are held twice a day, once at 10 a. m., and next at 2 p. m.; but the boys are subject to call at any time of the day or night. . . . Willkie awakens at 6:30 every morning and takes a walk around Broadmoor Lake at a speed of approximately one mile an hour—his only form of exercise.

The rest of the day he spends in his apartment. . . . He doesn't like to fish, swim, play tennis or golf. . . . At an informal poll taken among the 13 correspondents who accompanied Willkie from Colorado Springs to Des Moines, 10 of them believed Willkie will be elected. They all appeared to have fallen under the influence of his charm with the exception possibly of Tom Stokes, Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance; John O'Donnell, New York Daily News; and Bill Arbery of the Associated Press. . . . Although several others said they were not completely sold on him personally, at least 10 believe that he will win in November.

Most popular member of the Willkie entourage is Mitchell Davenport, whose ability to think rapidly and coherently has made a deep imprint upon newsmen. He seems to be the only adviser who has Willkie's ear, most of the others seeming to be figureheads. . . . When John Hamilton and Joe Martin left Willkie to depart for the east, the candidate was sitting on the patio talking to correspondents. Without rising from his chair he waved goodbye and said: "Awfully glad you fellows dropped in." Then he picked up the trend of his conversation with the newsmen.

Willkie's reception on the State House steps at Des Moines after his farm conference was disappointing to his enthusiasts. . . . One interesting development was Oren Root's ability to handle the factionalism which sprang up among the Iowa Willkie-for-President groups. He smothered it out with suave ability. . . . Willkie's kind remarks about Henry Wallace in his Iowa State House speech were well received in the farm belt. It was good diplomacy. . . . The Willkies occupy the entire sixth floor of the Broadmoor Hotel for which they pay the very modest price of $107.60 per day. . . . The thing that bothers those around Willkie most is that the campaign is a complete one-man show with Willkie running it in the same manner he handled the problems of Commonwealth and Southern.

HENRY WALLACE WEAR

For seven years, Henry Wallace with his tongue in his cheek, has studied the manners of polite society in the nation's capital. He has acquired an extensive wardrobe which includes the proper costume for every occasion—from a tennis match to a state funeral.

But there is one item of gentleman's apparel which still has Henry puzzled. It is that wait-baited Persian origin knotted at the cummerbund.

Henry encountering a cummerbund wearer at a party given by Sumner Welles. He blinked twice and said:

"In hot weather like this, I can't see the point of wearing a thing like that around your middle. But I must admit it looks pretty fancy; it makes you look like a Venetian gondolier."

Note—The word cummerbund derives from the Persian words kamer (loins) and band (fastening).

A Bystander
In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—It's gotten so every day is moving day in Washington. Walk around the streets in the government building section in the evening or at night and you are lucky if you don't step on a typewriter, butt your brains out on a filing cabinet or fall into a desk drawer.

Stinnett

The reason: National defense.

The government is short on office space and is trying to juggle and jockey its various units into a new set-up that will take care of the rapidly spreading defense personnel.

It has W. E. Reynolds, the public buildings commissioner, nearly crazy—but he isn't the only one. A Reconstruction Finance Corporation employee, returning after a short illness to his office in the old Commerce building, found some Old Age Insurance division employees working there. He swears it was two days—when the new phones were connected—before he could locate his office. (Note: His personnel director refused to accept the alibi, docked him for two more days off.)

Then there is the case of the Potomac Park apartments. That shows how desperate the situation is—Uncle Sam taking office space in apartment buildings.

As a matter of fact, Uncle Sam has been using this apartment for some time. The Social Security board has been there, or at least the above-mentioned Old Age Insurance division of the SSB, has been there for some time. They moved out to make way for war department and national defense employees.

This sort of triple play—moving three offices to accommodate one new one—is going on all the time. It's the only way adequate quarters can be apportioned.

In one case, the government has taken over an old roller-skating rink and is converting it into offices for the justice department's alien registration division.

Think Of 200,000 Rugs
If you are interested in figures, the federal departments now occupy nearly 21,000,000 square feet of space. In other words, if you spread 200,000 nine-by-twelve rugs out on the ground, you could just about take care of Washington government workers, but you'd still have to find a place for the congressmen and senators.

The office space problem isn't the only one raised by national defense to haunt the sleepless nights of federal officials. The residential housing problem has them sweating, too, and come what may, it looks like the capital is in for a building boom.

Several government and private agencies already are working separately on this and recently Charles F. Palmer, a hard hitting World War cavalry officer from Atlanta, Ga., who is recognized as one of the country's leading authorities on housing was appointed defense housing coordinator.

His organization hasn't had time to get under way, but its work is certainly cut out. It'll be Palmer's task to see that all the other agencies function properly and that when the influx of defense workers really reaches proportions there is housing accommodation, at reasonable rentals, for all.

Editor Post-Crescent — It is interesting to note in times like these when the prospect of conscription of Americans is conjured up before us daily that there is a difference between patriotism and nationalism.

While many of our august senators are using their eloquence in Congress to get a conscript army, there is much ado by many industrialists who would be called upon to produce war equipment.

It appears that these men are much worried these days about one word—amortization.

It seems that if these men have to build any new buildings in their efforts to fulfill government orders, they want the cost of any such building to be charged off within five years or less. In that way they would get the government orders and be paid for putting up the buildings.

They also want to wait to see how much they will have to pay in the way of excess profits taxes, before expanding.

In other words, they don't want to have to pay for their patriotism in this so-called emergency.

These men are concerned principally with their pocketbooks. It's all right for the rest of the Americans to be called upon to conscript their very lives during peacetime, but the investment of these gentlemen must be preserved—emergency or not.

It's the old story over again—lives are cheap, but wealth is everything.

If the President thinks it necessary to conscript life itself, then let him conscript everything that is subordinate to it, including industry and wealth.

For when our lives are conscripted, we have given our all. Let wealth make sacrifices too.

Here's Where We Get Off

Under the
CAPITOL DOME

Editor's note—During the absence of John W. Wyngaard, the Appleton Post-Crescent's correspondent at Madison, his daily column will be written by men prominent in state government. The views expressed by these guest columnists are distinctly their own.

BY RALPH E. AMMON
Director, Wisconsin Department of Agriculture

Madison—Dear John:

You suggest that while you are on a vacation I write a guest column, giving my view of the future of Wisconsin's dairy industry and the direction that changes may take. That really is quite a subject to hand to a guest. But realizing that a host must forgive any mistakes that a guest may make, here goes!

Wisconsin's dairy industry, in my opinion, will enjoy one of the brightest spots in the agricultural picture for at least a short period. But like most visits to the bright spots a headache may follow.

There are at last four rays blending in the present bright outlook for the dairy industry.

1. A relatively low supply of butter in storage. On June 1 there was only one third as much butter in storage as the normal five year average.

2. An almost complete curtailment of imports of cheese from Canada and Switzerland.

3. An export demand for cheese, evaporated milk, and powdered skim milk.

4. An active domestic demand due apparently to success in the efforts of the dairy industry to advertise and merchandise dairy products coupled with improving industrial conditions.

Prices have held rather firmly throughout June and have shown some tendency to rise in July, despite the fact that June production may be recorded as an all time high for any month; Here is a real break for the dairy farmer. For once at least price has held in the face of peak production.

The average price for all milk produced in the state for the nine months Oct. 1, 1939 to July 1, 1940 will run 25 cents per hundred pounds above the average price for the same months a year before. That has resulted in $18,000,000 more income for Wisconsin dairy farmers.

If present conditions continue, prices should continue to hold firm. But in that "if" lurks a possible headache that we previously mentioned.

If these conditions should change for the worse in the face of present high production, the farmer would be at a disadvantage because he cannot turn off production suddenly like the buyer can.

Headache No. 2 that lurks in the present brightness lies to the south of us. There was said to be in storage on June 1 a bountiful supply of corn, wheat and cotton.

Some figures have revealed on hand 1-3 billion bushels of wheat, (three times normal supply) 2-3 billion bushels of corn (twice normal) and enough cotton to run our mills for a year.

These are the Big Three of our export crops, and incidentally the ones on which we have been borrowing money while the surplus piled up.

These storage supplies will prove a great reservoir and a great boon to national defense in case this nation should go to war or in case some other nation calls upon us for a great supply of food. There is no indication that we will need to increase our acreage or our output of any one of these great export crops.

While these crops were being stored with government loans, dairy products were not eligible for loans. Dairy products prices declined to levels that moved them into conscription. New demands may increase dairy prices quicker than they would the prices of these crops that are stored in great quantities.

An increase in dairy prices may

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

SCAR

Contrary to a notion of many laymen and some old time physicians calcium (lime), whether taken into the system in hard water, in the form of medicine or in foods that contain considerable calcium, does not tend to cause hardening of the arteries nor to cause stone in kidney or bladder, nor to cause gallstones, nor to cause high blood pressure, nor to cause cataract.

Actually there is considerable evidence that some of the diseases mentioned, particularly premature hardening of the arteries, may be one result of prolonged calcium shortage in the system—either from insufficient intake of calcium (whether in food, drinking water or medicine) or from inability to absorb, assimilate or metabolize or utilize enough of the calcium to satisfy the body's daily requirements.

People who labor under the quaint misapprehension that food or water containing "too much calcium" may bring on any such disease or that one may avoid the risk of such disease by avoiding hard drinking water or by drinking only soft water or distilled water or by avoiding foods they imagine contain "too much lime" ought to change their reading, their habits or maybe their doctors.

For one thing it is questionable whether the calcium in drinking water is absorbed or used by the body at all. Anyway it is negligible so far as health is concerned—if the water is satisfactory in taste it makes no difference whether it is hard or soft.

Deposits of calcareous material in the tissues have no such significance to the pathologist. The presence in the arterial wall of more calcium than normal arteries should have spells just one thing to the pathologist—degeneration. Calcification occurs only as a late consequence of the death of functioning tissue cells when replacement (regeneration) of the cells is no longer possible.

The chief items in the Regenerative Diet, the Corrective Protective Diet, are foods particularly rich in calcium—milk, egg yolk, lettuce, nuts, carrots, celery, turnips, cheese, traw cabbage (coleslaw) leafy vegetables, greens. Here it is well to recall that "preservation of the characteristics of youth" and "material improvement of the life expectation of adults" are among the benefits gained by following a diet based on some such pattern.

The old timers drew wrong inferences from the calcareous deposits they found in certain tissues, because they knew little or nothing of the physiology of nutrition. There is no excuse for intelligent laymen, to say nothing of physicians, persisting in that error, now that we know better. Calcareous material merely takes the place of the cellular elements of organ or tissue after these functions elements have been worn out.

Lead producers of these crops in the corn, cotton and wheat belts to increase their dairy herds. In that event a sudden decline in demand would further increase the dairyman's headache.

I understand, John, that a columnist is supposed to close with a moral, a conclusion, or, at least, some advice, in my capacity as director of the department of agriculture I have refrained from giving advice to Wisconsin farmers. My job is to give service rather than advice.

But since as a guest columnist I am supposed to draw a moral or give advice, I suggest to Wisconsin farmers that they reap all possible benefits from present favorable demands but that they do not spend these benefits in increasing their herds, because someone may turn off the demand.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Call It Cri

I wish that two-bit pamphlet "Call It Cri" of yours were in the hands of every head of a family in this country. I believe it would be the means of preventing an untold amount of unnecessary illness. It is the finest and most effective elucidation of the subject I have ever read. (J. P.)

Answer—It will be placed in the hands of any one who asks for it, enclosing 25c coin and 1-c stamp—envelope bearing his address—an envelope not below standard size.

Plain Wheat
No doubt you have read about the whole wheat flour. Seems to me you could have great influence in persuading millers to adopt this new method of making flour. (I. N. K.)

Answer—If you only knew how little influence I have in that way. Best I can do is to offer to any one who asks for it and incloses stamped envelope bearing his address, a monograph "Wheat to Eat" which tells how to use plain wheat in the every day dietary.

Iodine
Does iodine lose its strength after standing in water ten or twenty minutes? (Mrs. M. R.)

Answer—A fraction of the iodine would volatilize from the water, but not enough to matter, ordinarily.

Basic Purpose Of Wagner Act Misunderstood

Board Member Says
Issue Over NLRB Is Really Quite Simple

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — The most objective statement that has yet come out of the controversy over the fairness or unfairness of the National Labor Relations board and the Wagner act has been written by W. M. Leiserson, a member of the board. It came to light today as a part of the record of the Smith investigation committee and was originally contained in a private letter written by Mr. Leiserson to Professor John R. Commons. The letter, which is one of the most interesting contributions to the discussion of labor problems in America, follows in part:

"The issue over the NLRB is really quite simple, but hard to make plain to the public because it is concerned with details of administration. I would summarize the whole situation by saying that there is nothing the matter with the law at all. The whole trouble and most of the public clamor, I am convinced, stems from two things: one, misconception on the part of the board and its lawyers as to the basic purpose of the act; two, poor administration.

"We have 900 employees, half of them scattered to cover all the states of the country. To manage a large, far-flung organization of this kind is a job all by itself, requiring technical knowledge of management organization and administration. There is no one here in a responsible position who has any such technical training or knowledge. The result is that we really have no organization to manage our staff at all. There is lacking anything like an efficient system of directing or supervising the work of our large and scattered staff. . . . The lawyers who control the administrative work of the board as well as the legal department have no conception of how to handle the mass production job. Their method is to assign cases to individuals and leave each one to his own devices.

"Basic Misconception
"You have no doubt read of the Smith committee's recommendation to amend the act by separating the judicial functions of the board. This proposal makes plain the basic misconception regarding the work of the board. As a matter of fact, we have neither prosecuting nor judicial powers. We are really a branch of the congress for investigation and fact-finding purposes similar to the interstate commerce commission or to the Wisconsin Industrial commission.

"Congress imposed no penalties on employers for violating the law. It merely adopted a labor policy for industry engaged in interstate commerce which changed the policy that had been in effect for a century and which the supreme court had surrounded with constitutional sanctions. Congress knew that it could not make the old policy a crime or a misdemeanor punishable by fine or imprisonment, as it has done in the Railway Labor act for the transportation industry. Instead, it merely created the board for the purpose of investigating and finding whether employers are pursuing the old practices, and if they are, the board is given authority to order them to cease those old practices and to pursue the new practices of collective bargaining with free organizations of employees.

"Can't Grasp Idea
"The board and its lawyers can't seem to grasp this idea. Essentially they really agree with the Smith committee that we do have prosecuting and judicial functions. Therefore their defense before the Smith committee was that the board itself is very careful to keep in separate compartments the prosecuting and judicial functions and not to mix the two. I warned them that that kind of a defense accepts the premise of the Smith committee and they are bound to lose. If I thought that we had prosecuting and judicial functions here I would not trust myself to keep them separate, and the evidence before the Smith committee showed many instances where what was considered prosecuting was mixed with the so-called judicial. The lawyers seem to have the notion that the only way to arrive at the truth is by two opposing lawyers trying to keep things out of the record, and whatever gets in, that is the truth. They have no understanding of the method of inquiry of investigation that we call economic or social research. This explains the recommendation that Dave Saposs's economic research division should be abolished. The lawyers identify the investigation with the hearing; they call it a trial. The actual careful investigation that is done before the hearing they consider mere preparation

Hollywood — I want to take time out this evening to pay a well-deserved tribute to Gene Autry—Hollywood's best Good Will Ambassador.

For the past few years, Gene has averaged almost 100,000 miles per annum on his visits to our shores. He's visited big cities and he's visited hamlets, and never once has he failed to win friends, not only for himself, but for the entire industry which he unofficially represents. I've had letters from theatre managers, School Superintendents, Civic officials and just plain fans. They all tell the same story—Autry has been there and proven himself a "regular."

These p. a. jaunts of his are undertaken, primarily, as good will investments. He always visits schools, orphanages and hospitals. Because he believes that he should be an example of clean living to his millions of kid fans, he never smokes or drinks. He's accessible to anyone who wants to talk with him and I doubt that he's ever refused any demand on his time if he possibly could meet it. Not long ago, for instance, he worked until 2 a. m. to finish a picture so he could fly to Okemah, Oklahoma, a town of 5000 population and keep his promise to attend a civic festival.

IDOL CHATTER: According to Martin Dies, Hollywood backstabbers have swapped their old-fashioned knives for hammers and sickles. Peas-in-a-pod: Portland such as a prosecuting attorney would do.

"The problem is really more far-reaching than the NLRB itself. It threatens the whole idea of scientific investigation and administrative control as it was thought out and worked out in Wisconsin years ago. As new administrative agencies have been created here, great numbers of lawyers have been recruited to man them. These have been trained in the new ideas about administrative law that are now current in the law schools. Their knowledge of labor relations, for example is confined to decisions of courts on labor cases. They do not distinguish between the administrative procedures by which a board carries on its own work and the decisions of the courts with respect to regulations that involve questions of due process of law. They therefore are concerned mainly with getting out rules of practice for the guidance of lawyers who have business before the board, and they largely neglect the administrative regulations necessary for the intelligent handling of the cases and the personnel. The only regulations we have published, for example, are rules of practice for lawyers, and most of the procedures for carrying on the investigations and other work of the board are not mentioned at all in these regulations.

"I have had occasion to say that it won't be long before we will have an association of practitioners before the labor board, to whose members both employers and unions will be forced to go to get the benefits of the act because no layman could understand the legal practices and procedures. . . .

Board Asked To Purchase City Airport

Committee Applies for WPA Grant, Would Set Up Fund to Buy Land

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh — The county aviation committee recommend purchase of the Oshkosh Airport, Inc., by Winnebago county this morning when it submitted its report to supervisors.

The committee requested that an airport fund be established and that $75,000 be set aside to buy the airport and adjacent land necessary to bring the airport up to Class C requirements.

The committee has applied to the state WPA for a $210,000 grant to develop the airport after the land is purchased and in its report recommended that the county board take advantage of these funds if they are available.

Roy Kittleson, supervisor from the town of Winchester, said that the WPA told the committee to apply for the grant before the site is purchased so that money for development would be immediately available.

Henry Schultz, Neenah supervisor, said that unless additional land is purchased adjacent to the present land, the airport would not meet class C requirements because the proper runways could not be built.

The board was expected to study the committee's recommendation this morning.

Neenah Has Three Cases Of Paralysis

Keep Children Away From Crowds, City Health Officer Asks

Neenah — Three cases of infantile paralysis have been reported in Neenah, according to Dr. Frank O. Brunckhorst, city health officer. Two of the victims are patients at Wisconsin General hospital at Madison while the third is under quarantine at his home.

In Menasha no cases of contagious disease have been reported to the board of health, according to H. O. Haugh, city health officer. The ages of the Neenah victims range from 21 years to 18 years.

While there is no epidemic, Dr. Brunckhorst warned Neenah residents to take precautions. The virus usually invades the nose and throat following contact or association with a person who has the disease or who is a carrier. A person may carry the virus although apparently not sick.

The disease attacks the tissues of the spinal cord and the larger nerve structures in the spine. It sets up an inflammation which destroys the cells and causes paralysis. It usually attacks children by may attack adults.

Symptoms Cited
Symptoms of the disease, according to the doctor, include a severe headache, usually in the front of the head, which may last three days; sweating, particularly of the head and forehead; upset stomach accompanied by vomiting; constipation usually although in some cases the sick person may have diarrhea, and fever of about 100 degrees and seldom higher than 103 degrees.

The child becomes suddenly ill and appears weak as well as drowsy and irritable. Those same symptoms may indicate other ailments but more specific symptoms of infantile paralysis are tenderness and pain in the back of the neck. The neck may be noticeably stiff and the child may be unable to bend his head forward. Within 24 to 72 hours he may not be able to move parts of the body. Mild symptoms are not uncommon and may escape notice although paralysis may be just as great as with a severe case.

The health officer advised parents to keep children away from crowds and parties if a child becomes ill, he should be put to bed and the family physician should be called immediately.

channel and elsewhere as the Germans sought to bomb military targets. Exact figures on plane losses at the moment were not available, but the Germans insisted in general that their losses were light and those of the British heavy.

In a German bomber raid on the harbor of Walsend, between Newcastle and South Shields, DNB said, numerous high explosive and incendiary bombs caused widespread fires in storehouses and warehouses. Five minutes after the missiles fell, the agency said, a terrific detonation was heard.

Battle Over Channel
British chasers and anti-aircraft batteries trying to repel the before-dawn Nazi raiders were unable to prevent the attack or even inflict damage, DNB declared.

It said fierce air battles, developing over the channel and along the coast, cost the British "a great number of chasers" as German fliers succeeded in breaking through aerial defenses to bomb previously designated targets.

British plane losses for today have risen to 69, while only seven German planes are missing, the German radio reported.

residential districts of one southeast coast town were damaged shortly before midday.

Although it was at first thought an enemy bomber was over the town, it later was considered possible that the heavy explosions were caused by gun fire.

An investigation was started at once by the authorities. It was not established officially that long-range shelling from across the channel had begun.

Householders were unanimous in their belief that the damage was caused by shells. One other advanced the possibility that large fragments came from shells which might have been dropped from German planes rather than fired from cross-channel guns.

The casualties occurred while the raid was not officially in progress. The two killed were a man and a woman who were walking along a narrow street when a shell or bomb struck nearby. "Authorities said today there was 'no confirmation at all' that the heavy explosions were from shell-fire."

Tom Pipe House, Old Landmark In Waupaca, Is Being Razed

Waupaca — One of this city's old landmarks is being razed this week to make room for a used car lot. The Tom Pipe house, as it is known, has been purchased by Laux Brothers, automobile dealers. The house, a large 10-room brick building, was built in 1871 by P. S. Woodworth, father of Mrs. Belleva Houseman, who still resides in the city. In 1901 the property was sold to the William Peterson family, most recent owners. Mrs. Houseman recalls that there were no contractors to build the house, that it was built strictly "by the day," and the deceased Lute Smith of Ogdensburg, was one of the carpenters who worked from early spring until late November before it was finished.

The framework of the building has two by four twenty feet in length, reaching from the first floor with its 11-foot ceilings to the top of the second floor which has 9-foot ceilings, all still in excellent condition. Four years later Waupaca was incorporated as a city and in 1883 the present courthouse was finished. The old one which stood on the same site was moved to Mill street where it now houses a second hand store.

Waupaca Plans City Airport

2 Commerce Bodies Name Committees to Consider Location

Waupaca — Directors of the junior chamber of commerce and the association of commerce met at Circus Inn Friday evening with E. H. Todd of the civil aeronautics authority and Archibald O'Toole, supervisor of the Wausau airport, to discuss possibilities of having an airport in the city. A committee from each group was appointed to confer on location and sponsorship of the project. Mr. Todd has Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas as his territory and spent much of Saturday in the city looking over possible locations.

The committee from the association of commerce includes Edward Hart, president of the association, Dr. L. J. Patterson and Allan Scott; from the Jaces, Reuben Danielson, president; Richard Johnson and Albert Anderson.

Waupaca has an enthusiastic following in aviation, with two already the owners of planes, Dr. Patterson and Jarvis Selberg. Others keenly interested are Allan Scott, Ray Sommers and Archie Hawkison. Dr. Patterson will receive his private pilot license this week which will entitle him to fly anywhere while Mr. Selberg has his student license.

Dr. Patterson has been flying since April. After receiving his student license a few weeks ago he announced to his wife that he was "going to buy an airplane". She, unaware of his pastime, informed him that he could "choose between his wife or the plane." However, today Mrs. Patterson and 3-year-old Freddie are enthusiastic fliers.

Dr. Patterson studied under Percy Chaffee, instructor from the Clintonville airport, and a companion in flying is Phil Neidert, Iowa, who helped him build the hangar at the outskirts of the city which houses the former's cream colored two passenger plane. The ship, with its 65 horsepower and continental motor, has a cruising speed of 95 miles an hour. The doctor does not plan to use it professionally. His parents' home is in Steubenville, Ohio, a distance of 675 miles which takes 16 hours by car and but 6 hours by plane.

Fractures Leg in Auto Accident

Clintonville — Joseph, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Popek, 30th Fifth street, suffered a fractured leg when he was struck by a car driven by Albert Schultz, Clintonville, about 6 o'clock Sunday evening. Schultz was driving into S. Main street from the alley between the Charles Bohn and Herman buildings when a group of children ran across just ahead of the car. Joseph stumbled and fell in front of the car which, although moving slowly, could not be stopped in time to avoid striking the child. One wheel ran over his leg above the knee. The fracture was reduced at the Clintonville Community hospital and after a cast was applied the child was taken to his home.

Miss Cora Krueger, 17, daughter of William C. Krueger, route 3 Clintonville, is confined to the Clintonville hospital where she underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis Thursday evening.

Betty Jane Pufahl, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pufahl, route 2, Clintonville, returned home Monday after receiving medical care at the local hospital since Thursday.

Those who underwent tonsil operations at the hospital during the last few days were: Patricia Murphy of Chilton, Eugene Schanks of Eau Claire, Jean Stiemper and Betty Jane Knaack of Clintonville.

Stevens Point Group Is Feted at Waupaca

Waupaca — The Waupaca Garden club entertained the Park Ridge Garden club of Stevens Point Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. H. Truesdell. The lesson on table setting custom of various social periods in American history was presented by Mrs. Edward Hart and the hostess had several tables set with old glassware and dishes of several wars. Among the dishes illustrated and described were pieces of old blue china or Staffordshire ware made in 1775 up to 1840. There was also German Majolica, Wedgwood, Jasper, Black Basalt and Queen's Ware, all used in America until 1860 when American companies started producing Tucker, Chesapeake, Majolica, Lennox, Bellek, Getman stone ware and lustre ware.

Guests from Stevens Point were Mesdames George Ressler, Horace Coleman, Ernest Vierter, Jr., Arthur Olson, Alois A. Razner, Charles Engbreton, Oscar Hafemeister and Mrs. Melvin Clarin.

Members who attended the meeting were Mesdames O. F. Peterson, A. M. Christofferson, Jennie Truesdell, Willys Holmes, James Carew, E. E. Browne, V. O. Parrish, P. J. Christofferson, Charles Brame, Sam Salan, Allan Scott, Ben Dance, Theodore Peterson, George Klake, O. E. Hanson, Henry Smith and L. J. Patterson.

It was announced at the business session that the Fox River Valley District Flower show is to be held in

Piloting Modern Plane No Child's Play, Johnson Says

Editor's note: The daily column by General Hugh S. Johnson is being substituted for Raymond Clapper's column while Mr. Clapper is on vacation.

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

Indianapolis — Every time, after a year or two of impersonal, seemingly automatic flying in a passenger liner, I get a chance to sit alongside an expert modern pilot and see how this profession has advanced. I wonder where we are going to get the kind of pilots we shall need in any expanded air force.

It is getting to be a profession almost as complex as medicine and certainly as difficult and requiring as much training and experience as that of the master of a surface ship. It includes a thorough schooling in the use of scientific flight control instruments, in all kinds of radio work, in meteorology and navigation—not to mention the old stuff of learning, by a complexity of experiences with everything that may happen to a ship in the air, to know how to get her down safely.

When I look back at my own limited flying experience—as a passenger, not a pilot—and realize the risks I took, without even apprehension, simply from not knowing what was going on, I get goose pimples and my hair begins to rise. Real fliers have said the same thing to me. It is possible to learn enough about the mere physical controls to fly a ship in the sense of getting her off the ground and back down again after eight or ten hours in the air, but the idea that a reasonably safe pilot can be made after say 30 hours of instruction is perfectly preposterous—and very dangerous.

Unconfirmed stories about the Germans sending partly trained boys to attack in flights, relying on only one or two ships equipped with modern instruments and piloted by really trained leaders may be true. They also may explain the astonishing British claims of bringing down three or four German ships for every one they lose.

That is too expensive a policy, and we certainly do not want to risk cities, ships, convoys—not to mention young lives and costly planes—on that kind of training.

The Civil Aeronautics administration is exerting great efforts to get some interest and primary training into young men by subsidizing old pilots to train them—at so much a head—for eight hours with dual control. Then the kid goes out solo. After that he has 22 hours—altogether 30. He isn't supposed to be a pilot, but to have had his primary training—$325 worth.

Pilots Need Better Training Than They're Getting

Will the army and navy accept that spade work and entrust its expensive military ships to these boys? Almost certainly no. They will probably regard it as something unlearned. It costs several thousand dollars to educate a pilot their way.</

A.A.U.W. Is Asked to Help Save Nation

A challenge to college-trained women "to help maintain and strengthen the best elements of the civilization we wish to preserve" is outlined in a leaflet just issued by the American Association of University Women to its local groups. It has been received in Appleton by Mrs. Bert Norling, publicity chairman of the Appleton branch of the association, as well as other cabinet members of the organization.

"We are beneficiaries of a way of life that offers wider opportunities to women than are found in any other country," the leaflet states. "We have a corresponding obligation to use our training with the utmost intelligence and devotion to preserve that way of life when it is threatened."

The association asks its 68,000 college graduate members to conduct swift surveys of their local communities to discover where help will be most needed in the months ahead. The Appleton branch will begin the project in September.

Members of the organization are advised to turn their energies into such channels as cultivating intelligent public opinion, supporting the schools, protecting children and young people, watching consumer interests, speeding adjustment of immigrants, aiding war refugees, strengthening welfare services, encouraging the spirit of free inquiry and building toward renewal in the arts.

Preservation of academic freedom, protection of the consumer against profiteering, care of refugee children, maternal and child welfare are some of the objectives of the program.

If Pegler Was Big Employer He Would Land in the Clink

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—If I were a big employer engaged in interstate commerce I would have been slapped into the boob a long time ago, because I would have made it my business to fire all communists, to sound off my views in shop orations and pamphlets and to refuse even to discuss, much less to consent to, a closed shop agreement in my plant.

If my own government finds that it can't abide communists on the WPA the same government certainly looks funny telling me that I have no right to toss them out of my business, but I would have made the issue a long time before the government came to this decision and, for that, of course, I would have been convicted of coercion and intimidation in the first degree and ordered to reinstate the communists or support them in idleness on full wages for the rest of their lives. Nevertheless, I would have copped them for the same reason that the government has now decided to fire them out of WPA, to wit, that they are a lot of treacherous conspirators, and not only useless as workers but a menace to any business which employs them.

A man shouldn't be compelled to support his enemies, even when they have declared their hostility and demonstrated it by destructive actions. However, employers have been compelled to keep communists on their pay rolls because of the very fact that they were communists, the idea being that dismissal for their political beliefs would constitute an invasion of their rights.

But I would have given the labor board a pretty good argument. I would have pointed out that communistic enterprises, mainly publications, rigidly exclude non-communists from their employ and fire those who falter in their faith, and I would have said, "Boys, is my government asking an American businessman to conform to conditions which it is unwilling to impose on the communist party?"

I would have bothered them silly, but they would have convicted me just the same, and I suppose that even today, after the government itself has decided to fumigate the WPA, the board still insists that private enterprise has no right to do the same.

In the matter of sounding off to the help, I would have taken the position that my views are patriotic, constructive and generally helpful, and would have stood on the proposition that a businessman has as much right as anyone else to express his opinions.

I would have cited some of the lies circulated in the shop against the company and would have said: "It is my duty to give the information so that they be not misguided in reaching their decisions."

But I know that truth-telling would have been construed as coercion and intimidation, too, and I would have received another sentence for that, probably to run consecutively.

And then in my dealings with the bargaining agent I would have said, "There will be no closed shop here, because I have no right to force non-union people into your union," and you know what that would have led to. I would have been tried for refusing to bargain in good faith and convicted on another count, not for coercion and intimidation this time, however, but on

MAN PLEASER SALADS

The secret of making salads that are sure to win cheers from the men is not a hard one to learn. Here it is. Men like a salad that has a fresh, keen flavor. They abominate a lot of sugar in salads. A salad to be a salad, they maintain, must be something that is a good self-respecting French dressing or mayonnaise can enjoy associating with.

They like simple salads, without all the fuss and deception that some women go to in order to add "appetite appeal" to their meals. Make salads so that they can tell exactly what is in them—a hearty wedge of lettuce with dressing is a good deal better to them than some of the concoctions that defy the best detective to tell what is in them. If it is to be a combination salad, then make the slices of tomato thick, the cucumbers and radishes fresh and crisp and then put them all together lightly. As for the dressing, let the individual help himself at the table.

- Savory Salad
- 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
 - 1 cup cold water
 - 1 cup hot water
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 cup mild vinegar
 - 11 cups grated American cheese
 - 1 cup stuffed olives, chopped
 - 1 cup green pepper, chopped
 - 1 cup celery, chopped
 - 1-3 cup cream, whipped
- Soak gelatin in cold water about five minutes. Add hot water and stir until dissolved. Add salt and vinegar, cool, and when it begins

Simple Play, Nourishing Food Induce Sound Sleep

BY ANGELO PATRI

Sleep usually comes naturally to children. They sleep soundly, restfully, long hours. Occasionally we find a child who does not follow the pattern, but sleeps lightly, wakes often, perhaps lies awake for hours on end. This is serious because the child needs sleep for growth.

A wakeful child disturbs the household. Everybody's sleep is broken, consequently the family are irritated. Mother is especially distressed because she worries about the child's health and the disturbed rest of the other members of the family. In desperation she tries to discipline the wakeful one.

"I've spanked him hard but it does no good," said one such troubled mother.

Spanking is about the worst treatment a wakeful child can have. Sleep will not come to a distressed body and mind and spanking certainly is not soothing. Talking, scolding, anything that centers the child's attention on his troubles only increases them. Quiet, soothing measures are needed.

Remove the Causes

First have the child specialist see the child. Go over the child's background thoroughly, trying to tell the doctor about any possible cause for nervous anxiety in the child's mind. Think about the people with whom he must come in contact, the children he plays with and his entertainment to discover any overstimulation there. Examine his whole being, physical and mental for hidden causes. The wakefulness will not be cured until the cause is found and removed. Be assured he won't "grow out of it" without help.

A well-rounded, happy, happy, spent, is a great help. A warm bath before getting into bed, a soothing rubdown, a gentle powdering, a sleepy sort of story—one with plenty of sing-song repetition like "The House that Jack Built" or "Creep Mouse"—are good aids. Soft, soothing music or a lullaby helps some children. But the one thing most needed is a contented mind.

Stick to a Routine

It does not take much to make little children contented. All they need is a feeling of security in the affection of those about them; simple play; simple, nourishing food; kind and firm treatment; a regulated, consistently administered life. Anybody who sets about giving his children that sort of environment can succeed. It is not a matter of money or a gifted personality.

It is just a matter of simple routine and a will to see the job through.

There is no royal way to successful child training. No child has ever grown into successful maturity without giving his people plenty of bother and worry. Rearing a child is a lifetime's task. No two are alike, so no two respond alike to the same treatment. Always one must adjust the training to the needs of the individual child. But all children eat and sleep and grow according to schedule, varying slightly of course, but coming near enough for us to set a routine that works. Only the exceptional child fails to sleep and he is sick, overtired or badly trained.

Analysis of Bids Aids in Play of Hand

BY ELY CULBERTSON

When only one pair is engaged in the bidding, it is amazing to see how often the other partners adopt an attitude of complete disinterest in the proceedings. Many times when there were long waits between the bids, I have heard a player say to his opponents, "Fight it out, boys; just wake me up when you've reached a final contract." The short sightedness of such an attitude is best expressed by showing the swing which can be created by careful attention to the bidding.

In the hand below, South was wide awake while East and West were bidding their slam. Consequently, he won 100 points instead of losing 1430 points.

North, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 spade	Pass	3 hearts
Pass	4 hearts	Pass	4 spades
Pass	4 no trump	Pass	5 hearts
Pass	6 spades	Pass	Pass

West's forcing take-out of three hearts was an example of one of the rare cases when such a bid is made with only one first round control. Ordinarily, a forcing take-out shows such power that the slam connotation is unmistakable. Naturally, most players hesitate to make so slamish a bid without two aces, or an ace and a void. However, West's plentitude of kings gave assurance that his partner must have aces if his hand were strong enough for a slam try.

On lead against the slam contract, South thought carefully before touching any of his cards. In each minor suit there was a safe lead from the top of a sequence of honors. But South disdained these ordinarily excellent sequence leads. He remembered that during the bidding West had jumped hearts to the level of three, thus showing a five card suit, and that East had raised, indicating at least three hearts. With at least eight hearts in the combined hands of the opponents, South could see that his partner could not hold more than one heart.

Having arrived at this sound conclusion, South opened a heart. Declarer won and immediately tried to take out the trumps. But South stuck to his original plan and took the first trump trick with the ace. Another heart lead was then trumped by North and the slam was defeated.

Oh, yes. Six hearts or six no trump would have been ironclad.

THE HOME GARDENER

by EDWIN H. PERKINS

At this time in the north and as much as three weeks later in the south, we find lilacs and many similar shrubs at the end of their growth for this season. From now on all plant energy—in the species under discussion—is expended in making fat, plump buds, and terminal shoots for next season's flowerers.

Extra feeding at this time may start new growths. It may cause an out of season flowering or may force the buds to remain greener than necessary with the result that they may still remain soft when cold weather arrives. Soft buds are the kind which freeze. Many times you are the cause for the non-flowering of otherwise well cared for plants. Do not then treat plants which are maturing buds with too much care. Frequently water them and keep up cultivation, but withhold foods.

Later, sometime after frost or dormancy has checked all growth, the plants can be given some food in the form of rough bone or horn shavings. One pound to a specimen plant is none too much. These materials, when dug into the soil with a rake or spade, will remain whole for a long time but by spring some of their benefits will begin to appear in the plants. From then on they will disintegrate slowly, providing a slow but never failing supply of rich root and stem-making foods.

Never include candles on the dining room table service unless they are to be used to supply needed light. Light them just before the guests enter.

Beauty and You

Many faulty posture habits are caused by weak and ailing feet. You see men and women walking along the street as if the weight of the world were resting on their shoulders. If your feet are strong, if you wear properly fitted shoes, if you do not allow your heels to run down, you should be able to walk in good posture and you should not have any foot aches.

Now that it is summer, try to run around barefooted on a lawn, or in the house if you have no lawn. Do not go without shoes too long for your feet have grown used to heels and you may feel a strain in the leg muscles. But going barefoot on the grass or on the beach is splendid for strengthening your feet.

Exercise Feet Daily.

If your feet are in a painful and weak condition you should exercise them at home, with the weight of them. The restoration of weak feet is apt to take time, so don't expect results the first week. Keep at the following exercises, and follow the rules in my free leaflet, "Beauty Through Foot Health." You should then be able to correct your foot trouble.

Exercise I.

Limber Your Feet: Lie down on the floor with feet about eighteen inches apart. Extend the heels by pushing them downward and then turn feet inward so the toes meet. Bring them back to the original position, relax a trifle, then repeat the exercise.

Sit on a chair, stretch legs out with heels on the floor. Pull foot

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

Here is an attorney who is faced with one of America's most acute problems. While many politicians are rating newspaper headlines over their efforts to stamp out un-American activities, men like Claude are the real patriots of this land. They seldom gain any public recognition, but they are diligently working every week of the year to safeguard our democracy through promoting that organization responsible for the "Golden Rule" on which democracy rests.

CASE R-144: Claude G., aged 31, is a successful attorney.

"My wife and I are active members of our church," he began the discussion.

"It has a beautiful auditorium. The people are sociable. Our clergyman gives us excellent sermons, and we have the best choir in the city."

"But our audience is small. We should have double the number of people in the crowd each Sunday morning. But why don't we, Dr. Crane?"

"That's what I want to know. How can we get more people into our church? We cannot meet our budget unless we can recruit some more members."

DIAGNOSIS:

It is an axiom of business psychology that when you are manufacturing sterling merchandise for which there is an evident human need, it should sell.

If it doesn't, then we assume it must not be priced correctly, or else the merchandising methods are at fault.

Since our churches let the members set their own price on the value of Christianity in their community, we cannot blame poor attendance on an arbitrarily fixed price which is too high for the average consumer.

As a result, we are left with this problem of "merchandising." I trust you readers will not consider me sacrilegious when I employ commercial terms with reference to such sterling products as Christianity and religious education.

How To Fill The Church

There is an old adage that states, "In order to fill the church you must first fill the pulpit."

This means that it takes a live wire clergyman who is a past master of applied psychology and public speaking technique, as well as a sincere Christian.

In this hectic modern age, the churches are forced to meet all sorts of competition, so a successful clergyman literally needs to be a superman in understanding people and employing psychological strategy to motivate them.

There are two general attitudes on the part of people regarding the church. Some attend because of childhood training and a feeling that they "ought" to go. Thus they may even sit through dry and dull sermons.

Others attend because they like to do so. They are pulled to church by a strong attraction there, instead of being driven to church by such early parental training and deference to their mothers' teachings.

Since half of our population belong to no church at all, this 50 percent are not training their children to attend. In order to enlarge our membership and attract some of this 50 per cent, therefore, we must

My Neighbor Says—

Rhubarb roots can be set late in September. Prepare a place for them by digging the ground deeply and working in some old manure or a liberal supply of pulverized sheep manure. New rhubarb plants are easily made by splitting up old roots, and if the clump is of fairly good size, stalks for cutting will be little barmyard dressing around the new set crowns and dig it in when spring comes.

Exercise II.

Massage Metatarsal Arch: Sitting on a chair, with left leg extended from body, loop towel under the metatarsal arch or at ball of foot. Extend heel, keep knee straight and pull towel taut. Now grip your toes over edge of towel and pull harder with right hand so the foot is rotated inward. Repeat five times with left foot, then with right foot. Work up to twenty times a day.

Exercise III.

Make Feet Flexible: Stand with feet slightly apart, toe pointing straight ahead. Raise the right heel, letting part of the weight fall on the ball of the right foot. Then as right heel begins to lower, raise the left and continue. Both feet should be moving all the time. When your movement is coordinated, start moving around the room, adding a slight spring to the movement. Do this for five minutes.

Suggestion

Those of you who stand on your feet a great deal, or use your feet constantly in the work you do, should make it a habit to sit or lie as frequently as you can, with your feet higher than your body. For instance, sit on a chair with your feet on a desk or table. Or lie on your bed with your feet resting high on the headboard.

Smart Blouses

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

I think this is true in your case. If your sister has been living with a husband who didn't support her, she must have been at work. Why shouldn't she continue to work instead of coming home for you to support? If she can't pay for the medication of her children, why shouldn't she take them to the free clinics where the best doctors give their services for nothing?

And can't you see yourself that you encouraged your brother and his wife in their extravagance by paying their bills for them when they got in debt? Being put out because they didn't pay their rent or having their radio taken away from them because they couldn't meet the installment would have taught them a lesson in economy that might have saved them. Being noble is very fine, but being sensible does more good in the end.

Family Martyr Should Forsake Noble Attitude

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am 30 years old. Went to work when I graduated from high school at 16 and since then have supported my mother entirely, none of her married children ever contributing a cent. Now my sister has decided to divorce her husband and has come home with her four children, in need of medication as well as food, clothing, and so forth, and I shall have them to take care of, as her husband never provided for them. My brother has also come back to me to support until he gets another job. He earned a good salary, for many years, but he and his wife spent much more than he made, so not only did I have to help him out from time to time, but I have had to help him out from time to time. They all take it for granted that I will support them. Guess they are right, because if I had a crust of bread I would share it with them, but to do so I not only have to deprive myself of every comfort but of needed dental work and clothes. And, worst of all, because of these burdens upon me, I am cutting myself off from love and marriage and ever having a home of my own. What should I do?

Answer:

There is no use in telling you what to do because, with your character and disposition, you will go on being the family goat to the end. Nobody can save you. You are the foredoomed sacrifice to your people.

I do not think that there is any story more pathetic than that of the girl whose selfish and predatory family rob her not only of the money she earns by her labor, but of her youth, her happiness, her chances of love and marriage and home and children. Yet it happens so often.

Sometimes it is an older sister who is called upon to assume the burden her parents are too weak and selfish to bear, and who has to slave to support a brood of younger sisters and brothers.

Sometimes in your case, the married children leave the entire support of Mother to the youngest child, and because the girl makes a home for Mother they feel they have a right to flee to it in any time of trouble.

But in every case the story is the same and the end is the same. Everything the girl earns goes for the food for parasitic mouths, doctors' bills, clothes, schooling for brothers and sisters and the hordes of children that those who cannot support them seem to always have.

The girl cannot think of marriage. She grows old working for others. And, at last, when she can earn no more and when she has no more money to give, she is kicked about from house to house, an unwanted, unloved, unthanked old woman who is regarded as a burden by every one.

Whether the family martyr is a fool or a saint is a matter of opinion. Personally I think nine times out of 10 she is a weakling who lacks the backbone to stand up and fight for her own rights, and that in sacrificing herself she does more harm than good.

I think this is true in your case. If your sister has been living with a husband who didn't support her, she must have been at work. Why shouldn't she continue to work instead of coming home for you to support? If she can't pay for the medication of her children, why shouldn't she take them to the free clinics where the best doctors give their services for nothing?

Getting Married Not a Bad Bet

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am an unmarried woman of 40. What about my marrying a man of 70 who is highly educated, active in his work, young for his age and who would make a good companion? W. B. T.

Answer:

You could count on 10 or 15 years of pleasant companionship together, in all probability, for many men of 85 and more are still going strong mentally and physically. So it is up to you whether you think the risk is worth taking. I don't think it is such a bad bet.

Casual Slaughters

By Virginia Hanson

YESTERDAY: The robbery of the chaplain's car and clothes is the second occurrence of the kind recently at Fort Michigan. Adam explains. The chaplain's plight arouses amusement on the post.

Chapter Three

GERALD BEAUFORT:

That noon, in the mess hall Colonel Pennant asked the junior medical officer how the chaplain was.

Captain Jones's slightly prominent eyes blinked; his Adam's apple made a couple of trips up and down.

"Sorry," he mumbled, "Didn't realize I was being addressed. The chaplain, sir? Worst case of poison oak I ever saw. We washed him—did everything we could. He seems unusually susceptible to it. Face, hands, swollen out of shape."

I'm sure we all tried to keep decently sober; I know I did. But in spite of all I could do little shuddery giggles began to escape me. Adam, pink faced, was avoiding my eye and feeding radishes rapidly into his mouth. Colonel Pennant made chuckling sounds through lips that could not seem to keep from stretching horizontally. And Felicia, at the head of the table, eyes round and mouth folded, was I felt sure, composing one of her lines for later release.

Somewhere a telephone rang and Captain Jones, with a muttered apology and a haste that nearly upset the waiter with the soup, fled from the table. He did upset his water glass, transforming his mound of crumbs into a soggy, unwholesome pulp. He disappeared into the lounge, happily unconscious of the bitter glance Felicia Bridewell sent after him.

"As if that bread isn't crumbly enough, without pulverizing it," she said with distaste.

"What's the matter with him?" demanded Colonel Pennant.

"His wife's in Chicago having a baby," she told him resignedly. "I always thought doctors took such matters very lightly, but it seems

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

VACATION GUESTS

Two young girls have been invited by a well-to-do and evidently awe-inspiring great-aunt to go with her to a very luxurious hotel in a fashionable mountain resort. They are much worried about "paying their breakfast checks!" "At lunch and dinner," they tell me, "Aunt A— will be with us and write the orders and sign her name for the three of us. But if she does not get up to have her breakfast with us (which is very likely) must we pay for our own breakfasts or may we sign her name? If this is right, how do we sign it without committing a forgery? And what if she says nothing about it, which she probably won't, as she is very astute? What shall we do then? We haven't enough money to pay for breakfast more than twice at most—maybe only once."

Answer: Since you are her guests, you may write her name for such necessities as meals, including tips. You do not imitate her signature, but merely write her name as Mrs. Green (or Miss Green) Room 789. You must not sign for any extras (or charge without signing). Magazines or anything else bought at the newsstand must be paid for by you. Ordinarily, you should pay for your laundry and any pressing of dresses. But since she will probably expect your clothes to be fresh and neat, you might perhaps ask her frankly what to do about these items.The Wedding Reception

Dear Mrs. Post: Does an invitation to a wedding ceremony in the garden mean that every one will expect to stay for the reception? We can't afford to provide refreshments for many people, and really, can't ask every one to stay. A friend tells me that we should invite only the number we can have, and send announcements to the other people. Is this true?

Answer: Your friend is right—because you couldn't ask people to leave your garden any more than you could ask them to leave your house. An invitation to the wedding ceremony in church requires a separate invitation to the house, since one leaves the church and then goes elsewhere. But if people are at the house or in the garden, no extra invitation is included because it is taken for granted that they are expected to stay. You will either have to cut your list of invitations to the ceremony, or else prepare for many. You might remember, however, that the food can be very frugal. A fruit punch, a wedding cake cut into small sample pieces, and some ordinary small cakes to fill in would cost very little. In short, people would surely rather be invited to very simple provisions than not to be invited at all! Or (impossible to imagine) to be asked to go home!

Blue Eyes and Gray

Gerald Beaufort's eyes—those special gray, lash-trimmed eyes—met mine across the table.

"The bride?" he asked pleasantly, but with just the right hint of regret.

"Not this time," Adam said just as pleasantly. The blue eyes and the gray met and measured each other.

"I'm often a bridesmaid, never a bride," I told him sadly.

Gerald said, "You don't live right." Gerald Beaufort screwed an imagining monocle into his eye, leaned confidentially toward me across the table.

"Are you double-jointed?" he asked politely.

"I—I'm afraid not."

"How jolly! Neither am I. Perhaps we're soul-mates!"

Having settled that, he turned his attention to the soup.

Felicia Bridewell telegraphed me one of her looks that meant, in my language, "Loopy!"

"Are you susceptible to poison oak?" Adam began hollowly and was not allowed to finish.

"If you don't mind," said Gerald Beaufort politely when the laughter had died down, "I feel like a new boy at school. I laugh at the jokes, but I don't understand them. I've been hearing echoes of that one ever since I arrived this morning. What's funny about poison oak? Dashed uncomfortable, I'm told—"

"You mean to say you don't know?" Felicia asked incredulously.

"It's quite a story," observed Colonel Pennant, and told it with relish.

"I still say it must be dashed uncomfortable when he had finished."

"You'd think so," Adam said grimly. "If you had seen him trying to wrap himself up in the stuff." "Is there any hope of catching the thing?" Felicia asked. "Who investigated, anyway, in an affair of this kind?"

"In this particular case, the state police," Colonel Pennant told her. "The whole thing occurred off the post. Crimes which occur off the government reservation are not investigated by the post personnel or by Department of Justice men sent for that purpose. We notified the troopers first thing and they came out and talked to Chaplain Henry. He couldn't tell them much."

The Chicago White Sox raked two St. Louis hurlers for 16 hits last night but it took a ninth-inning double by Jimmy Webb to give them a 6-5 victory over the tenacious Browns.

Eight bases on balls and two errors helped the Sox, but lack of timely hitting cut down their score. They left 17 men stranded on base, one short of the American league record.

St. Louis, never ahead, knotted the score with a two-run, splurge in the seventh inning only to lose out in the ninth when Bob Kennedy walked, went to second on a sacrifice and scored on Webb's wallop.

Jack Knott started on the hill for Chicago but was relieved in the seventh by Clint Brown, who was credited with the victory.

Catcher Al Lopez's Pittsburgh Pirate mates all call him "winning pitcher Al" and they point to him as the sparkplug in baseball's most sensational winning drive.

The Bucs, who have known the dregs of last place in the National league but are now only a game and a half behind the third place Giants, were paced to their 20th win in their last 25 starts last night by Lopez—4-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds and Bucky Walters.

The experts, digging into the Pirate performance, have come up with this excellent answer to the whys and wherefores of that success: It's Lopez's handling of the pitchers.

Scores First Run
Last night, Al scored the first Pirate run in the sixth inning, which he opened with a single. He singled Frankie Gustine home with another in the seventh after the young second sacker had personally pounded Elbie Fletcher home, to the great delight of 42,254 fans, who incidentally brought the attendance for seven night games to 167,930.

In the only other major league game, the Cleveland Indians whacked out 12 hits, including three homers, to hand Master Bobby Feller his 20th victory of the year and take undisputed possession of first place in the American league with an 8-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Feller held the Bengals to seven blows and brought his streakout total for the year to 197 with seven Bobby was in trouble in the seventh when he walked three men in a row—and the Tigers capitalized on it and scored three runs.

Hal Trosky, Beau Bell and Roy Weatherly hit for the circuit to keep the Indians' victory torch alight, and Ben Chapman paced the attack with three singles.

Hal Newhouser, the Detroit starter, was chased in the first inning and charged with his ninth defeat of the season.

A crowd of 23,720 saw the game—one of the biggest week-day gatherings in Cleveland history.

Kimberly Will Battle Neenah In Night Game

Papermakers Eye Second Place in League Standings

Kimberly—When Sonny Wildenberg's Papermakers meet Neenah Wednesday night under the lights, the fans will see a great Fox River Valley league battle. A win for the Papermakers plus a victory in the coming Kaukauna game, will probably put Kimberly in second place in league standings with four wins and two defeats for the second half.

The Kimberly club is determined to put its last two games in the win column. Boucher took Neenah into camp previously by pitching a dandy 3 to 1 win in Neenah's own park. The visitors want revenge and believe they can bunt the Papermakers infield dizzy.

Manager Wildenberg's gang has been on the diamond nightly, throwing to first with accuracy and hitting tremendous wallpops to the wall. The gang realize anything can happen in baseball and should Oshkosh lose again, the Papermakers could be tied for top honors.

Ordinarily, the valley league schedule closed Sunday, but the Papermakers have two games postponed to night, tilts, which will probably come up in a week or ten days. Besides Tuesday's game, the booster game with Kaukauna will be the last one for this season. At that game fans will be able to vote for their favorite Papermaker pitcher. Wednesday's game is scheduled to start at 8:15.

The Appleton Y. M. C. A. journeyed to Manitowish last night and defeated the Gauthier Meats of Two Rivers in a second-round game in the third annual Fox river valley softball tournament, 3-0. The Y will meet Stangles Hardware of Manitowish tonight.

The Appleton team gave its pitcher, Bobby Diener, a 2-run lead to work on from the first inning and from there on in he allowed only one scratch single, striking out 17. He walked three men.

Ripple opened the game for the Y with a single to center and scored when Branchford doubled to left. Schwardt flied out, Branchford taking third after the catch. Krause was thrown out, Branchford scoring. Kranzsch walked and Mortell ended the inning by driving out a long fly to right field.

The Y scored its third and last run in the second. Crane led off with a hit to center, Captain sacrificed him to second, and Pope brought him in with a single. Diener flied out and Rippl was tossed out at first.

Pushing over 10 runs in the sixth inning, Kaukauna Klub beat Kewaunee 27-5 last night. The Institute of Paper Chemistry won on a forfeit, the Astor Bombers of Green Bay failing to appear.

TONIGHT'S GAMES
Fond du Lac at Appleton.
Green Bay at La Crosse.
Sheboygan at Wis. Rapids.

Appleton Papermakers return to their home stamping grounds, Spencer Street field, at 8:15 tonight for a tilt with the Fond du Lac Panthers after a mediocre road trip.

The team has been bolstered considerably by the addition of Elmer Wenning, a southpaw hurler. Wenning won 18 games in the Kitty League in 1936 and 22 in 1937. More recently he has been hurling in Mexico. He is 23, stands 6 feet and hits the 180-pound mark.

Wisconsin Rapids—An infield hit in the ninth inning with the bases loaded enabled the Wisconsin Rapids White Sox to defeat the Appleton Papermakers, 8 to 7, in a hotly contested state league game here Monday night.

Temporary Manager Jim Higgins' boys grabbed a 4 to 1 lead in the first two innings, but the Sox knotted the count at 5-1 in the fourth. The score saw until the Papermakers finally knotted it at 7 all in the first of the tenth.

But a single, an error at first base, and a walk in the Rapids ninth packed the sacks with none away. Cominsky flied to Heffken for the first out and Bob Brand, who once dazzled the Papermakers with a 14 strikeout pitching performance, again proved a thorn in the side of the visitors as he hit an infield bounder along the first base line to score the winning run. Appleton capitalized on their hitting early in the contest by converting five hits into four runs in the first two innings.

In the first, Standaert was hit by a pitched ball and Malattia and Aronson whacked successive singles to right. In the second Byrne hit to left and came home when Wenning doubled in the same spot. Standaert drove the ball to center to score Wenning.

The Papermaker's came from behind to knot the count in the ninth as Malattia scored on Aronson's double to left and an error on left fielder Moxie Muhr. Norm McIntyre had one bad inning on the mound. He was nicked for four singles and issued a pass as the Sox tied up the score at 5-5 in the ninth.

BILLY'S READY FOR PASTOR—The fight crowd forced the odds lower on Billy Conn (right) as he finished training for his fight with Bob Pastor, who twice lost to Joe Louis, in New York. Spraying the Pittsburgh light heavyweight at his New York camp is his manager, Johnny Ray.

Conn Favorite Over Pastor, But Reasons Aren't Too Clear

BY GAYLE TALBOT

New York—Possibly the safest prediction that can be made about tonight's fight between Bob Pastor and Billy Conn at the Polo Grounds is that it will go 15 fast rounds to a split decision, with the manager of the losing gladiator yelling murder at the verdict.

A fight between two such clever light-hitting men usually ends that way, barring a bad cut that forces the referee to stop it.

Because neither fighter is a knockout-out, the match has not created a great deal of interest and might not draw more than $50,000 at the gate. Still, it should be an exciting scrap, for both Conn and Pastor are fast, smart and willing, and they are soft hitters only in comparison to a sickening puncher like Joe Louis.

There are several intangible factors that have influenced the odds. The sharpers think maybe Pastor had a year or two of his career knocked out of him in his last fight with Louis in Detroit.

Another angle is that promoter Mike Jacobs undoubtedly would prefer for Conn to win and provide him with an opponent for Louis, the only fighter who makes important money for a promoter today. Mike has no intention of putting Pastor in with the champion again.

It still is a mystery to at least one impartial observer why Conn has been a favorite ever since the articles were signed. By every yardstick in common use—experience, weight, defensive ability and fire power—Pastor appears to have a distinct edge. Anyhow, he looks like the more sensible choice.

There are several intangible factors that have influenced the odds. The sharpers think maybe Pastor had a year or two of his career knocked out of him in his last fight with Louis in Detroit.

Another angle is that promoter Mike Jacobs undoubtedly would prefer for Conn to win and provide him with an opponent for Louis, the only fighter who makes important money for a promoter today. Mike has no intention of putting Pastor in with the champion again.

It still is a mystery to at least one impartial observer why Conn has been a favorite ever since the articles were signed. By every yardstick in common use—experience, weight, defensive ability and fire power—Pastor appears to have a distinct edge. Anyhow, he looks like the more sensible choice.

Husky Packer Squad Prepares for All-Stars

PACKERS' 1940 SCHEDULE

Aug. 28—College All Stars at Chicago.
Sept. 2—Washington at Milwaukee.
Sept. 15—Philadelphia at Green Bay.
Sept. 22—Chicago Bears at Green Bay.
Sept. 29—Chicago Cards at Milwaukee.
Oct. 12—Cleveland at Green Bay.
Oct. 20—Detroit at Green Bay.
Oct. 27—Pittsburgh at Milwaukee.
Nov. 3—Chicago Bears at Chicago.
Nov. 10—Chicago Cards at Chicago.
Nov. 17—New York at New York.
Nov. 24—Detroit at Detroit.
Dec. 1—Cleveland at Cleveland.

Green Bay—Following a break-fast session last Saturday morning, the Green Bay Packers have been given full time daily workouts in preparation for the College All-Star game in Chicago Thursday evening, Aug. 29.

The husky squad, numbering nearly a half-hundred veterans and recruits, realizes full well the many problems to be solved before the battle in Chicago. In general, the men appear to be in fine condition. Due to the heat, many are working without shirts and are displaying beautiful tans from the summer's sun.

Intra-Squad Game Friday
An intra-squad game will be played at City stadium here Friday evening. It will be the first public appearance of the 1940 squad, and is being staged especially for the 38th annual convention of the Wisconsin Elks' association. The public is invited, and 8:15 will be kickoff time.

Coach Curly Lambeau and Assistant Coach Richard (Red) Smith have the benefit of years of experience in rounding out football squads. After having the players take it easy for the first few days, they launched upon an intensive workout to be equipped against the All-Star strategy.

5 Times National Champions
The Packers, National Football League champions in 1929, 1930, 1931, 1936 and again in 1939, will not face their first professional opponent until Sept. 2. On that date they meet Washington in Milwaukee.

Because of the All-Star game, however, they will be working harder than if they had not won the pennant again last season. Fortunately, the squad reported in good condition, many of the men having done heavy work during the summer months. The others engaged in outdoor sports that kept them in form.

Although it is still too early in the season to draw any definite conclusions, some of the recruits were impressive from the start. Spirit is high among them as well as the veterans, and there will be keen competition for all of the positions.

Northern State Notes

Manitowoc tucked away another victory on Sunday at Two Rivers by defeating the Polar Bears in a well played game 6-3. The Ships got a dozen singles off Bob Nelson while Feltman held the Cool City clan to six blows.

Two Rivers started something in the ninth and chased one runner across the platter with Stan Smoleg's triple but Hesik replaced Feltman on the firing line for the Shipbuilders and put the 'fire' out with but little trouble.

Manitowoc by winning over Two Rivers moved up to within a half game of the pace setting Seymour club. Bill Rowe's team has won five, with but a single defeat while the Ships are credited with five victories and two defeats.

The Seymour squad made good use of their 'off' Sunday with a fishing excursion out of Suamico. The players and club executives all had a good time and some of the ball tossers

Truckers Top Crack Negro Team by 4-1

Lefty Joe Petcka Is Credited With Win; Ferezacca Batting Act

Clintonville — The Clintonville Truckers continued on their winning way last night by posting a 4 to 1 victory over the Piney Woods Collegians, a crack Negro nine, in an exhibition tilt played here under the lights. This is the third straight year that the Truckers and Collegians have had it out on the ball field and this is the third win that Clintonville has chalked up over the colored boys.

Lefty Joe Petcka was credited with the win although he gave way to John Tomlin, former Trucker pitcher who is now performing with Hebeles, in the eighth frame. Lefty Joe pitched masterful ball during the seven innings he was on the mound. Petcka had little trouble keeping the Collegians under his wing and only once in the third inning when they bunched three hits and scored a run was Joe in hot water. The next four innings Petcka set them down one-two-three and during the seven innings not one of the four hits Joe allowed were good for more than a single. Tomlin chucking the last two innings also was in complete charge and gave up only one hit. This was the fastest game that has been played on the Trucker field this year, the contest lasting but one hour and 17 minutes.

Frosty Ferezacca, Trucker shortstop who has been filling in with the Green Bay Bluejays that past week, had his hitting eye working to perfection last night and was credited with three singles and a fielder's choice to top the batting honor roll. With the exception of Al Ankersen all the other Clintonville players were credited with at least one hit with 11 hits being recorded by the Truckers. The Piney Woods c b is chalked up but five hits, four off Petcka in seven innings and one off Tomlin in the last two stanzas.

The Truckers had somewhat of a re-organized lineup with several of the regulars missing. Manager Sid Felt took over second base and did a fine job coming up with a double play in the third inning.

Wednesday night Clintonville meets Manitowoc, first half champions, in a Northern State league game under the Trucker's lights. Manager Sid Felt is slated to start on the mound with Gene Volkman behind the plate.

Arcade Alleys Boosts Price; Industrial Bowling Loop Balks

Organization of the Industrial bowling league struck a snag last night when the management of the Arcade alleys announced a boost in price from 50 to 60 cents for three games. Team captains expressed opposition to the increase and the meeting broke up with the understanding they would not pay the increased price.

H. J. Weller, secretary of the circuit, which has rolled at the Arcade about 10 years, today said he doubted whether the league would be organized this year if the Arcade put into effect the new price schedule. In announcing the price change, Al Jens, proprietor, said the increase was necessary because of extensive work done on the alleys this summer and a general increase at other alleys.

If the league is formed, there will be at least two changes, Standard Manufacturing company, replacing last year's champions, Fredrick Barbers, and Fox Rivers, a former member, replacing Post Office. The Atlas Embossers and Power Company Washers weren't represented at the session and Sears Roebuck and Hebebeck's Dairy are ready to step in if they should vacate their berths.

Holdovers are Woolen Mills, Pond Sports, Atlas Printers, Power Company Reddy Killowatts, Mellow Brew, Telephone Company, Wire Works, Chair Company, Coated Paper, Schlafers Hardware, Tuttle Press, Montgomery Ward.

Extend Duck Hunting Season
To 60 Days; Bag Limit Same

Washington — Secretary Ickes announced today that the hunting season for ducks, geese, coots and jacksnipe had been extended to 60 days this year from the 45-day limit of last season.

Announcing the annual regulation for shooting migratory waterfowl, the secretary said that the extension was made possible by an increase in the population of these birds.

The regulations also lengthened the hunting day. Shooting may start at sunrise and continue until 4 p. m. for waterfowl and coot. Last year the hours were 7 a. m. to 4 p. m. Jacksnipe may be hunted from sunrise to sunset.

The bag limit on ducks remains at 10 a day.

Shorter seasons were provided, however, for woodcocks, and the bag limit on geese was reduced from four to three a day.

Shooting Seasons
The woodcock season was reduced from 30 days to 15 days with a daily bag limit of four and possession limit of eight.

Woodcocks may be hunted from sunrise until sunset as follows:
North Dakota and Wisconsin, Oct. 1 to 15.

Indiana and Iowa, Oct. 15 to 29. Arkansas, Kentucky and Oklahoma, Dec. 1 to 15.

Michigan, Upper Peninsula, Oct. 1 to 15, and remainder of the state, Oct. 15 to 29; Minnesota, Sept. 15 to 20; Missouri, Nov. 10 to 24.

Ohio, Oct. 10 to 24.

The new regulations reduce the bag limit on mourning or turtle doves and whitewing doves from 15 to 12, while not more than 12 of either or all of these species may be taken in one day.

Adjustments in open season for these birds also have been made. Shooting hours are sunrise to sunset.

Open seasons on mourning doves include:
Missouri, Sept. 1 to Nov. 15.

Illinois, Sept. 1 to Sept. 20. Kentucky, Sept. 1 to Oct. 31. Minnesota, Sept. 16 to Sept. 30.

Entries for Rich Hambletonian are On Equal Footing

Goshen, N. Y. —(AP)— There's no outstanding three-year-old trotter performing on the grand circuit and hence there's no favorite for the rich Hambletonian tomorrow.

Instead, when perhaps 50,000 fans pack themselves into good time park, they'll have to choose among a half-dozen evenly-matched horses.

The payment of the final $500 fees today will determine the exact number of starters and indications are there will be at least 10, bringing the gross value of the race to about $44,000.

Of these milestone, Spencer Scott, Kuno, Earl's Moody guy and Remus are given about even chances. The other five likely starters, none a rank outsider, are Steward, Princess Pert, Queen Victoria, Sister Hanover and Gentleman Jim.

One thing seems sure, the Hambletonian record of 2:01, made by Hollywood Dennis in 1934, isn't likely to be broken. None of the contenders has come close to the mark and the track at good time park has been slow. Even the great Greyhound couldn't do better than 2:02 yesterday.

Leonard, champion for the last two years, finished in third place with 71-73-144, one stroke behind Charles (Sonny) Schriber of Oshkosh, who won runnerup honors and paced the amateurs with rounds of 71 and 72 for 143.

Leonard and Schriber had been tied for the lead at the tourney's halfway mark.

George Calderwood, pro, at the host club, posted a 145 on rounds of 72 and 73, while Jack MacLaren, Green Lake professional, trailed with 73-74-147.

Tied at 148 were three pros—Everett Leonard of Appleton, with rounds of 72 and 76; Harold Leonard of Wisconsin Rapids, 73-75, and Harold Fossu, of Green Bay, with 78; 70.

Fred Gage of Green Bay, was runnerup to Schriber for low honors among the amateur entrants with 73-75-148.

SAILFISH RAISES LARGE FIN

An old-time English explorer, Sir Stamford Raffles, made this note about an event during a voyage more than a century ago:

"We have made an amusing discovery. A sailing fish, about 10 or 12 feet long, holds a mainsail, and often sails in the manner of a native boat. It moves with considerable swiftness."

Sir Stamford was writing about fish which are much better known today than in his time. They are called "sailfish," and are relatives of swordfish.

A sailfish has a large fin which rises above its back to a height of about two feet. This fin is low in front, just behind the head, but goes up at a steep slant to full height. The fin has a length of from four to six feet, along the back.

The statement about the sail being "hoisted" is quite true. While the fish swims under water, the fin is folded and lowered until it fits snugly enough in a groove in the back.

When the sailfish rises to the surface, the fin goes up. There is little doubt that winds which catch the "sail" are of some help in adding to the fish's speed.

A close relative of the sailfish is known as the "marlin." It does not have such a big fin above its back, but it has the same type of pointed snout as a sailfish.

The snout of a marlin has been compared to a spear. It is rounded, not flat like the sword of a true swordfish, or "broadsword."

A marlin is usually blue, black, or dark brown above, but the lower parts are yellow or silvery. It is a fast swimmer, and may cut the water at a speed of from 40 to 60 miles an hour.

The sharp snout of a marlin may be from 2 to 4 feet long.

A marlin may grow to a length of 10 to 15 feet, and may weigh half a ton. The late Zane Grey, a sportsman as well as an author, caught a marlin weighing 1,040 pounds.

HOW BRICKS ARE MADE IN NEW LONDON BRICKYARD—These four pictures show a few steps in the process of making bricks at the Hockers brickyard near New London. At upper right Joe Traubel operates an electric shovel to scoop up clay from a nearby pit. After being mixed in proper proportions the clay is molded into shape and conveyed to outside drying racks shown in the lower right. After the drying period, bricks are baked in hemi-spherical ovens for two weeks, and Henry Close is shown in the lower left tending one of the ovens. A general view of the brickyard is shown at upper left, with rows of drying sheds in the foreground and five baking ovens in the background.

Small Crew Quietly Turns Out Millions of Bricks a Summer

New London—To the casual visitor at first glance the Hockers brickyard two miles north of New London off Highway 45 appears as deserted as a forlorn cemetery. But lost among its staggered ovens, sprawling sheds and rambling buildings, a small crew of men carries on the production of several millions of bricks each summer.

The yards were established 46 years ago in 1894 by A. O. Zerrner, who retired three years ago to return the business over to Clarence Hockers of DePere. Although much of the original equipment has been replaced, the kilns and some pieces of machinery trace their installation back about 20 years.

From two to four million bricks are produced each year during the 5-month season extending from May to October. A crew of 12 to 15 men is employed.

New London winners in individual demonstrations were Calvin Larsen, first with a clean milk demonstration; Robert Loss, second with a demonstration of destroying weeds; and Simon Garrow, third with selecting a dairy cow.

The booth of the New London chapter won first place among the six entered in the production of clean-milk series sponsored by F. F. A. chapters of the county. The booth showed how tests are made to determine the cleanliness of milk.

She was a member of the Sacred Heart Catholic church at Manawa.

Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary will hold a regular meeting at the hall this evening. A social will follow the business session.

electric shovel scoops up clay from a 20-foot layer which extends to the surface of the ground. Although it is all the same color, the upper 4-foot layer is red clay and the rest is white, producing red and white brick respectively after it is baked. A small gasoline truck shoves and pulls the clay cars from the pit to the molding house.

From ground level the heavily loaded cars are pulled by a winch up a tramway above the molding machinery. The cars split in the middle to dump their cargo. A little sand and water in the right portions are added and the goosy mixture is forced into the molding machine below.

Wooden Molds Six bricks at a time are pressed in the wooden molds, and the wet bricks are dumped on flat boards. Placed on a conveyor they are carried to waiting workmen who place them in outdoor racks for drying.

As many as 36,000 bricks are molded in a day, and the drying sheds have a capacity of 400,000 bricks. In favorable weather the bricks are ready for baking in two weeks, but sometimes the drying period may take four to six weeks.

Into the large hemi-spherical ovens the dried bricks are piled for the final process. From 90,000 to 100,000 bricks are piled to the ceiling, each in just the proper manner so that the heat will be well distributed and affect each brick the same. After the ovens are filled, the doors are bricked shut and sealed with clay, and firing begins.

Bake Two Weeks Heat enters through ten inner chimneys opening halfway up the oven, and the draft is carried down and out through openings in the floor. The baking process requires 14 days. After seven days of slow fire the bricks become white hot at temperature of 1,900 degrees Fahrenheit, which is maintained for a week under forced draft. Another five or six days are required to cool the bricks with forced ventilation. The top bricks get hottest and are of best quality. After cooling they are sorted into red, white and mixed types.

Ovens use from 20 to 25 tons of coal per batch and must be fed continuously and carefully during the baking process. For 20 years Henry Close, oldest employee in years of service, has been tending the ovens at the New London brick yard.

After completion of the process half of the bricks are stamped with Hockers' name and the other half with Gagnon for the Gagnon Clay Products company which handles part of his output.

8,000 Present At Final County Fair Sessions

Saturday Attendance Cut Down by Poor Weather Conditions

Weyauwega—One of the most successful Waupaca county fairs in recent years ended here Sunday, with an estimated attendance of 8,000 persons on the final day and night. Friday's crowd was about average, but the Saturday attendance was below normal because of threatening weather during the day and rain at night.

Exhibits in every department were unusually good despite the comparatively early date of the fair. Entries in the junior fair made primarily by 4-H clubs and Future Farmers were greater by 50 per cent than in any previous year. Competition among the youths who entered cattle, hogs, and poultry was particularly keen.

Horse racing was brought back to the fair at Weyauwega after an absence of several years, and these harness events are believed to have had much to do with the increased attendance. Races were run both Saturday and Sunday, and in the businessmen's free-for-all on Sunday, King Cotton, a gelding driven by Jack Carey of Oshkosh, came within one second of equaling the track record. King Cotton traveled the second heat in 2:11, pressed all the way by Jim Fox, owned by Irving Lawler of Green Bay. Motorcycle races were an innovation at this year's fair, with drivers competing for cups on Sunday afternoon.

Crown Dairy Queen Miss Beulah Thompson of the Wisdom Ridge 4-H club, Weyauwega, was chosen dairy queen of Waupaca county. She was crowned by Mayor Pat Spearbraker of Clintonville Saturday evening, in front of the grand stand, and will represent Waupaca county at the state fair in Milwaukee. Included in Miss Thompson's court of honor were Miss Glendora Miller, Marble 4-H club, Clintonville, and Miss Linda Ferg, Green Valley 4-H club, Manawa, who placed second and third in the judging, together with Delora Dean, Hobart Hustler 4-H club, New London; Florence Fenske, White Lake 4-H club, Weyauwega; Velma Throne, Acorn 4-H club, Weyauwega; Eleanor Klotz, buecher, Green Valley 4-H club, Manawa; Yelda Ferg, Green Valley 4-H club, Manawa; Luella Laabs, Acorn 4-H club, Weyauwega; Ruth Laabs, Acorn 4-H club, Weyauwega; and Virginia Fleese, Wisdom Ridge 4-H club, Weyauwega.

The Wis Barn Dance Follies provided stage entertainment each afternoon and evening during the fair. There were also softball games, contests for both boys and

Public for Banning Strikes, Regulating Defense Industry

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—As the wheels of America's national defense program begin to turn this summer in hundreds of U. S.

factories, a nationwide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion reveals that the great majority of voters would approve curbs on both labor and industry — if necessary — to insure the greatest possible efficiency in America's rearmament effort.

The survey indicates, first, that an overwhelming majority think steps should be taken to insure that there will be no damaging and delaying strikes in the national defense industries.

Nearly four voters in every five (79%) say that such strikes should be forbidden by the government. Secondly, although the public opposes further control of industry for purposes of reform, as shown in recent Institute tests, a substantial majority favor a greater degree of government regulation wherever it may be necessary in the interest of national defense.

While the defense program has progressed thus far without major crises with either labor or industry, observers in Washington and throughout the country have been speculating on the likely reaction of the country if such an issue should arise.

The Institute survey indicates that—with the great majority of American voters — the interests of national defense far outweigh the traditional peace-time interests of both labor and business.

Should the government forbid strikes in industries manufacturing materials for our national defense, or should the workers in these industries continue to have the right to strike? The Institute asked.

The replies of those with definite opinions on the question were:

Should Forbid Strikes 79%
Should Not Forbid 21%

Only one person in twelve (8%) said he was undecided or without an opinion.

Previous Institute surveys have shown that the country as a whole is no longer in a mood to regulate business and industry further in the interests of New Deal "reform." To a remarkable degree, in fact, public opinion has swung over to the belief that the business point of view should be given greater weight in Washington. But where the interests of national defense are concerned, the majority still believe that further regulation and coordination may be required.

In connection with our national defense program the Institute asked, "do you favor increasing or decreasing government regulation and control of industry?"

A substantial group of voters (20%) declared that maximum efficiency can best be obtained by releasing business from some of the government regulations already existing — such as the Wages and Hours Act, the Walsh-Healey Act and the Wagner Labor Act — but the national vote on the question was:

Increase Control 63%
Decrease Control 20%
Make No Change 17%

One voter in seven (16%) said he was undecided or without a definite opinion.

The public's determination to let nothing stand in the way of national defense is shown by the fact that, even among voters in the upper income groups, a slight majority favored greater regulation of industry for defense purposes.

while a majority in the lower income groups approved a ban on strikes in these same industries.

Prohibit Strikes? Yes No
Upper Income Group 83% 17%
Middle Income Group 83 17
Lower Income Group 73 27

Control of Industry Increase Decrease No Ch.
Upper Income Group 52% 26% 20%
Middle Income Group 63 19 18
Lower Income Group 73 12 15
